U.S. HOPES TO END PART OF PHONE STRIKE

Conciliator Expresses Belief Long Distance Settlement May Come Soon.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—Federal Conciliator Peter G. Manno reported the government is hopeful of a settlement today in the long distance part of the nationwide telephone strike.

As negotiations resumed between the Union and the American Telephone and Telegraph Company's long lines division Manno told reporters:

"We are hopeful that a settlement will be effectuated in the long lines today."

Long distance service has been hit hardest by the two-day-old cross-country work stoppage—the first in the industry.

Would Not End Walkout

Manno emphasized that a settlement of the long lines phase would not end the entire walkout of 294,000 Telephone workers.

John J. Moran, president of the American Union of Telephone Workers which represents long distance employees, was less optimistic.

Moran, when asked whether a settlement could be expected soon replied, "that's up to the company."

"Anything that happens here in this meeting would have to go back to the policy committee of the National Federation of Telephone Workers for approval," he said.

Moran is chairman of the NFTW's policy committee made up of 49 members from as many affiliated unions. It was scheduled to meet at 2 p. m. today.

Provided Basis of Settlement

A settlement in the long lines division a year ago provided the basis for an agreement for the entire industry. Apparently with that in mind, government conciliators have been concentrating on that phase of negotiations in the current walkout.

Edgar L. Warren, director of the conciliation service, also tackled another phase of the tieup in a private conference with George Gephart, first vice president of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company.

Conciliation officers said the conference was "general and exploratory." When it finished, Warren headed into a meeting with representatives of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Workers union.

Bill To Stop Telephone Strike Hits Snag

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—Emergency legislation designed to halt the telephone strike by injunction collided with stiff opposition in congress today as house Republicans angled for President Truman's views on resorting to court action.

Senate labor committee members who plan to vote for injunctions against serious strikes as long range policy balked at a bill by Rep. Hartley (R-NJ), which would authorize a quick court order to smash the phone tie-up.

Senator Pepper (D-Fla), another committee member, flatly opposed injunctions under any circumstances in a labor dispute. He told a reporter the phone workers "probably are entitled to most of their demands" and that the strike "may be the only way they ever will get relief from intolerable working conditions and pitifully inadequate pay."

The feeler for Mr. Truman's views on the Hartley bill approved by the house labor committee came from Rep. Halleck (Ind), the Republican floor leader.

Declaring the measure is "designed to deal with this situation," Halleck said in an interview:

"So far as I know, there has been no expression from the President on this bill. Of course, the Republican congress stands ready to do anything that is right and proper to protect the national interests."

The measure, approved last week by the committee, has not been called up for floor debate.

The senate labor committee yesterday received the preliminary draft of a general labor bill which would authorize temporary injunctions to block strikes affecting national health or safety.

Sheriff Turns Eyestone Free

Man Held in Wife's Death Released; Officials Make No Comment.

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, April 8—Kenneth Eyestone, 30, Upper Sandusky trucker, late last night was released from Wyandot county jail where he had been held without charge since Saturday in connection with the death of his wife, Reva.

Eyestone was released following a conference of officials and officers in the office of Sheriff B. H. Stansbery. Following the conference Russell Price, Wyandot county prosecutor, announced the investigation had been completed and Eyestone had been released, but he declined to make further comment. Sheriff Stansberry also said he had nothing further to report. Eyestone was returned to his home by deputy sheriff.

Earlier in yesterday's investigation an "outside" officer was called to assist Sheriff Stansbery in checking the death of Mrs. Eyestone, whose crushed body was found in the driveway of her home on West Spring street. Tire prints on the night dress of the victim were checked with the tires on the truck Eyestone drove to Newark early Saturday and were reported to have matched. The trucker, however, continued to insist he last saw his wife alive at 7 p. m. Friday. The woman was killed about 2:30 a. m. Saturday.

Coroner J. A. Propst's verdict was that Mrs. Eyestone died of a crushed chest and internal hemorrhages resulting from having been run over by a motor vehicle.

Funeral services for Mrs. Eyestone were held at 2:30 p. m. today in Trinity Evangelical United Brethren church in Upper Sandusky and burial was made in Old Mission cemetery.

Vote Cooler Strike Notice

Ballot Results Reported 544 to 6 in Favor of Walkout Unless Demands Met.

Members of the Universal Cooler Unit of Local 750, UAW (CIO), meeting in The Star auditorium Monday afternoon, voted to call a strike at the Universal Cooler division of the International Detrola Corp. unless union demands are met by the end of this month.

Edward Duck, international representative of the UAW and spokesman for the union, said the vote was 544 to 6 in favor of the strike. The vote authorized an executive committee of the union to call a strike at the end of a 30-day period of union requests are not met. The 30-day period ends the last of this month, Mr. Duck said.

The union spokesman stated 567 members attended yesterday's meeting and 17 left before the ballots were passed out. He reported the union has a membership at the Universal Cooler division of approximately 1,000.

Hope For Settlement

Hopes for a settlement before the end of the 30-day period were good, however, Mr. Duck said. A company official said the management had no comments to make at the present time. Union representatives and company officials were meeting today and also have scheduled meetings for next Thursday and Friday, according to Mr. Duck. He said the 30-day strike notice was filed with the NLRB March 29.

He listed provisions of the contract sought by the union as follows:

Wage increases and adjustments, with a 23½ cent an hour wage increase and adjustments for individual classifications. He claimed the company was offering a seven cent increase.

Vacations with pay providing for increases of approximately 50 per cent with increases on a sliding scale over a five year period.

Overtime premiums with paid holidays and double time on Saturdays after four hours of work instead of six.

A union shop with provisions that anyone who is hired must become a union member within 30 days and other workers now employed also must become members.

Job bidding with elimination of restrictions on job bidding and calling for notices of job vacancies to be posted and positions filled on the basis of seniority providing an applicant is qualified.

BIG 4 PARLEY'S END PREDICTED

U. S. Sources Say Meeting Will Break Up Without Compromise.

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, April 8—American sources said today that unless the Russians ceased what the Americans called obstructionist tactics in the foreign ministers' council the whole conference could end very soon.

These informants said a showdown was taking shape within the four-power council between Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov and the ministers of the western powers.

The basic issue is whether the four powers must continue long the discussions on current German problems which have proved fruitless, or whether they can go on to frontiers and other matters, with the possibility of eventual agreement on the Austrian treaty.

An American official said the German subject had been talked out and that all views were known. He said nothing new could be said, and that if the Russians were unwilling to go on with other matters, the conference might as well end.

Russia's proposal to permit Germany to choose by plebiscite the form of her future government was regarded by western diplomats today as an effort to offset insistent Soviet demands for $10,000,000,000 in reparations and thus win the favor of the German people.

The reparations demands, thus far blocked by the three western members of the Big Four, have created a problem for Russia in German politics and this was regarded by some delegates to the council of foreign ministers as the underlying cause for the plebiscite proposal, which was rejected by the western powers last night.

9 DIE IN WASHINGTON BUS-TRUCK CRASH

By The Associated Press

SEATTLE, April 8 — Nine persons lost their lives last night when a heavy North Coast Lines bus collided with an oil truck and then plunged into the Duwamish river, running alongside the Pacific highway.

Twelve other passengers and the bus driver, Melvin D. Long, 22, of Olympia, Wash., survived, some with severe but none with critical injuries.

Heroic rescue work by eye witnesses and passing motorists, who waded into the river and climbed atop the two-thirds submerged bus, prevented a heavier death toll.

The first rescuers at the scene hacked holes into the roof to pull to safety frightened passengers who were fighting for air inside the wreckage.

Deputy sheriffs, police officers and state patrolmen worked in a heavy rain with artificial respiration and pulmotors to revive passengers as they were removed from the river.

Galion Robbery Suspect Caught After Trying To Thumb Ride With Police

Special to The Star

GALION, April 8—A Galion man who police say held up a filling station here about 1 a. m. today was captured this morning after police from four counties engaged in an all-night search for him over farm land a few miles south of the city.

He is Robert Needles, 22, of Galion. Richard Goff, 22, attendant at the Fair Price filling station, called police early this morning and said Needles, whom he recognized, had driven up in a car, asked for gas, and then held him up at the point of a gun, obtaining $94 from the cash register and $60 from his person.

Three Galion officers drove south out of Galion in the direction Needles had gone. A few miles out of town they came across him thumbing a ride, his car in a ditch.

Signals to Police

He signalled the police car, but when he saw the occupants were officers, started running and got away, although a shot was fired toward him.

Sheriff's deputies, highway patrol officers, and municipal police from Crawford, Richland, Morrow and Marion counties were called and began combing the area.

Several hours later Crawford County Sheriff Ralph Schreck saw Needles come out of a farm house on South Market street road in Morrow county. He had torn his trousers and had gone into the home where he was believed to have purchased another pair. Sheriff Schreck brought Needles to the Galion city jail.

Car Reported Stolen

Needles is said by police to have admitted the holdup. The car he was driving is said to have been stolen from the garage of Sam Mippman of Galion. Police said $85 had been recovered this morning. Needles has been employed at Iberia.

The proprietor of the filling station where the holdup occurred was robbed of $75 last summer at the same station.

G.O.P. SWEEPS DULL MICHIGAN ELECTION

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 8 — Republicans piled up majorities of nearly two to one in a dull state election today and seemed assured of the second sweep of the state of Michigan in six months.

No upsets appeared in the making, since most of the leaders already held office.

Leland W. Carr, 64-year-old former anti-graft grand juror, was leading the Republican-endorsed ticket for justice of the state supreme court.

With slightly more than 1,500 of the state's 3,900 precincts uncounted, Carr, who held the office by appointment, amassed 316,984 ballots out of a total vote that was beginning to level near the 400,000 mark.

Carr's Republican - endorsed running mate, Henry M. Butzel, 78, Detroit incumbent, was second in the voting for the two regular posts on the high court, and John R. Dethmers, 40-year-old former Republican attorney general, was well ahead for a third high court position left vacant by a resignation.

Eugene B. Elliott, 51, a Republican, was far ahead in his bid for a seventh consecutive term as superintendent of public instruction with 201,141 votes to 118,633 for George F. Montgomery, a school teacher and Democratic state legislator.

The G.O.P. held comfortable margins in the race for two regencies of the University of Michigan and two posts on the state board of agriculture.

West Virginia Coal Miners Going Back

By The Associated Press

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 8—An increasing number of West Virginia's 100,000 union coal miners returned to work today in both the northern and southern fields of the nation's greatest soft coal producing state.

The regional office of the coal mines administration reported at Fairmont that approximately 75 per cent, or 15,000 men, of northern West Virginia's force was on the job.

TRUMAN CALLS PRICE HUDDLE

Special Cabinet Session Set for Tomorrow; Economic Report Due.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—President Truman today called a special session of his cabinet for tomorrow to explore the price situation.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross said that chairman Edwin G. Nourse of the President's economic advisory council has been asked to submit a report at that time.

Mr. Truman, who has repeatedly expressed concern over rising prices, declared in a speech Saturday night he hoped industry would not go "whole hog for profits."

Ordinarily the cabinet meets on Friday.

The economic council has been making a continuous survey of the price situation.

Nourse and his council colleagues went to the White House this morning for a preliminary discussion with Mr. Truman.

The President told Democratic party leaders at their Jefferson day dinner Saturday night that unless prices are held down an inflationary spiral will result. He said this might price industry out of its markets and lead to widespread unemployment.

Ross disclosed plans for the special cabinet meeting at his morning news conference.

He said it will be a "special meeting" to hear an economic statement from Nourse relating to prices.

It will not be a formal report, Ross said, but rather a statement for the information of the cabinet and discussion.

"You might call it a seminar," he added.

Ross, under further questioning, emphasized that the meeting will not be concerned with either the nationwide telephone strike or the safety walk-out in the coal mines.

LEWIS "GRATIFIED" COAL OUTPUT GOOD

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—John L. Lewis today expressed "gratification" that coal production yesterday was "substantial" and instructed miners to resume work as fast as each mine is certified as safe.

Lewis, president of the AFL United Mine Workers, made public a telegram he sent to each district president of the union. It said:

"This office expresses gratification that production yesterday of re-examined and re-certified mines and strip pits was substantial.

"I confirm policy of immediate resumption of production at each mine as fast as it is certified by federal mine inspectors as being in conformity with federal mine safety code.

"Let us all hope that the belated efforts of the federal government to establish safety in the

AUTO PIONEER HAD BEEN APPARENTLY IN BEST OF HEALTH

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 8—In the flickering light of kerosene lamps and candles Henry Ford, famed pioneer of the automobile industry, died at 11:40 p. m. last night in his home at nearby Dearborn.

He would have reached his 84th birthday next July 30.

High flood waters of the River Rouge running through the Ford estate had cut power and heating services at the residence—and a wood-burning fireplace warmed the room.

Mr. Ford's death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

It came after the noted industrialist had spent a vigorous day inspecting flood-water damage around the Ford plant and was making plans for another inspection this morning.

Friends said he had never appeared in better health.

Wife at Bedside

At his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Clara Bryant Ford, and a member of the household staff.

A family statement said he had retired at 9 p. m. and had awakened at 11:15 p. m., complaining he felt slightly ill. Mrs. Ford gave him a drink of water. He died 25 minutes later.

The statement said that even telephone service from the residence was out of commission because of the flood waters and that an employe had to go to the company's engineering laboratory, nearly half a mile from the residence, to summon a physician.

Dr. John Mateer, of the Henry Ford hospital, who arrived at 12:15 a. m. said death was due to a cerebral hemorrhage.

Funeral Thursday

Funeral services will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal cathedral in Detroit on Thursday at an hour to be announced later.

The body was taken to a Detroit funeral home this morning and will be returned to the Ford Greenfield village to lie in state all day Wednesday.

All Ford operations throughout the world will be suspended on Thursday. Flags on all Ford property will be at half staff until after the funeral.

Mr. Ford's death marked the passing of not only one of the world's most noted industrialists but of an individualist who developed one of the most colossal family fortunes the world has known out of what often had been ridiculed as "a lot of crazy ideas."

Changed Course of World

Described in numerous citations as "of the select company assured of perpetual fame," Ford, a one-time obscure farm youth, was also credited with having "brought into being an industry that changed the course of the world."

He developed his great industrial empire for which he was once said to have refused $1,000,000,000, out of an idea for a cheap automobile and an initial capital investment, mainly by his friends, of $28,000.

That was in 1903, and at his death, the great empire belonged exclusively to his family and had manufactured more than 31,000,000 vehicles.

Ford returned only a week ago from his annual visit to the Ford estate in Georgia and was said to have been in excellent health at that time.

59th Anniversary Friday

He had been planning to celebrate his wife's birthday and their 59th wedding anniversary next Friday.

The passing of the elder Ford ended a career that had many

Vast Ford Empire Goes To Surviving Family

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 8—The death of Henry Ford left the great Ford empire in the possession of his widow, Clara Bryant Ford, his daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edsel (Eleanor) Ford, and four grandchildren, Henry II, Benson, William and Josephine Ford.

These constituted the immediate family and sole survivors of the founder of the far-flung Ford Motor Co., which began with a capital investment of $28,000 in 1903 and had an asset valuation of approximately three-quarters of a billion dollars as of last Dec. 31.

facets. He was an ardent pacifist, a prohibitionist, deeply interested in sociology and in the development of agriculture as an adjunct to industry.

Ford, who abhorred war, once tried to stop the first world conflict with a peace ship expedition to Europe, designed to "Get the boys out of the trenches by Christmas." It was a failure that cost Ford $400,000.

For a long time in World War II he refused to believe the German invasion of Poland meant a real war; he often referred to the conflict in its early stages as a "phony war."

Joined War Effort

Once it engulfed the United States, however, Ford entered wholly into the production of war weapons. "I want peace," he said, "and I'm fighting like hell to get it."

It was soon after the United States entered World War II that Ford asserted that under certain conditions he could build 1,000 planes a day.

He stipulated that the design must be frozen and that he must have the technical help of such aviation experts as Charles A. Lindbergh, one of his close personal friends.

Ford came in for much ridicule for his assertion, but he ignored it and pointed out that he had not said he could make bombers. Subsequently, at the huge Willow Run bomber plant he saw produc-

Ford Himself Probably Never Knew Exact Sum of Fortune

By The Associated Press

DETROIT, April 8 — Henry Ford himself probably never knew the exact amount of the fabulous fortune he amassed in the development of his great motor car enterprise.

He was one of 13 original shareholders who pooled $28,000 to establish the Ford Motor Co. in 1903.

When the Ford Motor Co. filed its annual statement of assets and liabilities with the Massachusetts tax commission for the year ended Dec. 31, 1945, it reported $718,660,356 in assets.

This included cash, notes and accounts receivable, stocks, bonds, securities and patent rights listed at $230,580,915; real estate at $143,924,799; machinery, equipment, furniture and fixtures at $200,609,862; merchandise and supplies $142,748,017; prepaid insurance, taxes, etc., $796,761.

The company reported a surplus of $612,678,531.

Distribution Only Guessed At

How much of these holdings, all within the Ford family, were wholly in the name of his wife, Clara Bryant Ford, in his own name and in possession of the heirs of his son, Edsel, has only been guessed at.

The seemingly most accurate estimated were that 38 per cent of the company shares were held by the elder Ford and Mrs. Ford, while the remainder, aside from the non-voting stock held by the Ford Foundation was in the possession of Mrs. Edsel Ford and her four children.

Ford never spent his money lavishly, but he did believe in placing it back into the development of the business. It was this determination that led to the break, in 1919, with the minority stockholders and the Ford purchase of all the stock held outside the Ford family.

The late Senator James Couzens, of Michigan, an early Ford partner, put $2,000 in the company for 24 shares in 1903 and took out $30,000,000 in the sale of minority stock in 1919.

Ford personal fortune has been estimated in various sources at

Goods Crowd Store Till Buyers Can't Get In

By HAL BOYLE
Associated Press Writer

IVANHOE, N. C., April 8—The "Merchant Prince of Ivanhoe" runs the oldest general store in the south—it is so crowded with goods the customers can't enter.

Hal Boyle

There no longer even is room inside for the owner, 77-year-old Charley Corbett. He sells from the front porch of his crossroads emporium in this small farming community of 200 persons. He's considering opening another store.

That won't be anything for Corbett. As soon as one store overflows with unsold wares he clamps on a padlock and starts anew in the nearest available building.

In forty years he has filled up three weatherbeaten ancient wooden stores with his unusual merchandising policy—which consists of buying something from every salesman who comes down the pike and piling it helter skelter in a jumble on the floor.

"Can't Resist Buying

"Old Charley just can't resist buying," said an old customer.

The present store is packed from front store door, from floor to rafters, with canned food, stale bread, plowpoints, nuts, stockings, combflakes, salt, soda pop and bolts of cloth. The locked stores of other years are also moldering wildernesses of unsold goods.

Corbett, a gentle-eyed man with long white mustaches, won't discuss the reason why he has gone through life accumulating unmarketed merchandise. He has never held a sale. Asked if most of his stock wouldn't spoil, he said dreamily:

"I sell some of it. Most anybody who comes along wants to buy something. Yes, sir, it's a fact. I keep on selling something every once in a while in the capitalist way. It's a good investment."

Old Charley peered into the cluttered interior.

"Anything You Want"

"There's a combination in there of pretty near everything you'd want," he said. But only old Charley could tell where it was. Once four women interested in antiques traveled more than 100 miles from Raleigh to see if he had any old-fashioned ladies' hatpins for sale. He did.

Women who couldn't find stockings in the city department stores during the war years should have come to Charley Corbett. He had boxes full of them. He still has—the same boxes, the same stockings.

Whether he operates at a profit or a loss is his secret. Unmarried, he lives alone in a rented room a few yards from his store. He used to farm himself but now rents out his tobacco lands to tenants.

"The fellow who used to run the grocery store here liked to go fishing," he said, explaining his start in the business world. "He'd send a boy over with the key to his store and asked me to run it for him. Got so I was spending more time in his store than I was on the farm. So I bought some groceries one day and started selling for myself."

Office in Coat Pocket

His office is in his side coat pocket. Each new letter goes on the inside of the bundle there, and when business is slack Charley answers the letters, pestling them off from the outside of the bundle.

"Yes, I give credit," he said. "You'd be surprised at the people that don't pay up—and those that do aren't in any hurry."

Charley is a quiet happy man unworried by the passage of time. He won't tell his age—77.

"I don't comment on that much, one way or the other," he said. I asked him for a cold bottle of soda pop. He fished a warm bottle off the floor.

"Got an icebox back there somewhere," he said, "but I haven't been fooling much with ice lately."

An enterprising salesman once climbed on a barrel of molasses to peer around the darkened interior. The rotted top gave away plunging the salesmain hip deep in stick molasses.

"Sorry, Red," sympathized old Charley. "You can wash yourself off at the pump out there."

New Members Received By Bethlehem Grange

A reception for new members was held when Bethlehem Grange met Wednesday night in the Grange hall, with Ralph Williams, master in charge. A letter from the state master, Joseph Fichtner, was read and an announcement was made of Pomona Grange meeting at Martel.

The lecturer hour was in charge of Mrs. Robert Howald and the program topic was "We're All Neighbors." Several vocal selections were presented by a quartet composed of Misses Louise Bender, Esther Augenstein, Barbara Kaelber and Margaret Howald, accompanied at the piano by Miss Hazel Klunk, and group singing was led by Oscar Kaelber. A talk was given by S. B. Stowe, a member of the executive committee of the Ohio State Grange. Guests were present from Bowling Green grange. Refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Charles McMahon and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Oswald.

At the next meeting, Whetstone Grange will give an exchange program. The refreshment committee for that meeting will be Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fogle, Miss Mary Faye McMillan and Earl Augenstein.

Millard Hunt Co. and Schlairet Co. Get Permits.

Two Marion concerns, the Millard Hunt Co. and the E. A. Schlairet Transfer Co., have been issued building permits by the city clerk.

The Millard Hunt Co. has begun work on a plant for preparation of ready-mix concrete diagonally across from the company's offices at 182 North Prospect street.

The building will be of prefabricated steel construction. Excavation is already under way and erection will begin within 10 days, according to company officials. The plant is expected to be in operation by the middle of May.

The building will be divided into bins to hold the material used in the preparation of cement. There will also be a tank to store the cement.

The new plant will increase the company's production of cement about 10 per cent, according to officials.

The E. A. Schlairet Transfer Co. will erect a steel and concrete block storage building at 324 Lincoln avenue. Work will be begun soon, according to officials. The building will be one-story, with a frontage of 30 feet and a depth of 108. It will be used to house motor freight.

HIGH COURT REVERSES OPA PROSECUTION RULING

Holds U. S. Can Bring Action After Law Expired.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—The supreme court yesterday reversed a lower court decision that the government could not begin prosecutions after June 30, 1946 for violations of the old rent and price control law which expired on that date.

The U. S. district court in Philadelphia had dismissed charges filed against two landlords Aug. 29, 1946. They were accused of collecting before the old law's expiration, rents which exceeded OPA ceilings.

The district court said that after the emergency price control act expired June 30, 1946, prosecutions then were restricted to case already started. The justice department in appealing to the supreme court contended the government still had the right to begin prosecutions for violations committed any time during the life of the price control act.

The supreme court ordered reversal of the lower court's decision by a brief order. No opinion was written.

THE NATION TODAY

U. S. Begins World Adventure Whose End No Man Can Tell

(This is the second of two stories on America's new foreign policy which the senate starts debating today).

By JAMES MARLOW
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON, April 8—We will vote $400,000,000 in aid to Greece and Turkey to stop the spread of Communism.

Congress seems certain to ram it through, but not without some soul debate. The senate starts debating today.

We will make this move for our own safety, whether or not Russia likes it.

To many, perhaps most, people in this country all this may seem like a good and necessary step.

James Marlow

But there are people in this country and elsewhere, particularly in Russia, who will question its goodness and need.

By making this move, and not caring whether Russia likes it, we take our position as the No. 1 world power, ready to act to prove it.

Start Asking Questions

And that's where those who don't like this new role for the United States start asking questions.

We step into European affairs with money, arms and military advisers to help Greece and Turkey.

Suppose Russia tried to do just that in Argentina, sending over money, arms and Red army advisers.

What would we do? We'd put a stop to it. We'd point to the Monroe doctrine which says European powers can't interfere in American affairs.

Doesn't that seem a contradiction and unfair?

We'll argue: No. We set up the Monroe doctrine to protect our security and we're going into Greece and Turkey for the same reason.

So we'll say: we're just extending the Monroe doctrine to Europe. In this we're being consistent, not contradictory.

U. S. Big Enough

What it boils down to is: we're big enough—bigger than anyone—to do what we want, and we'll do it to suit our purposes.

That's just one question, although a big one. Here's another:

The United Nations, with our help, was created to try to keep peace in the world through the friendly cooperation of all nations.

But President Truman did not tell the UN what we wanted to do when, on March 12, he asked congress for $400,000,000 for Greece and Turkey.

He just said UN couldn't do the kind of job that was needed.

As the realization of what all this meant sank into people's minds, voices were raised in this country that we were by-passing UN and maybe destroying it.

Bothered Many People

This bothered a great many people, including senators who wanted to vote the aid. So in time this plan was fashioned:

We'll go ahead and help out Greece and Turkey. Later on we'll stop giving the aid if the UN thinks we should stop.

But—are we going to present the plan to UN in such form that future UN opposition to our actions is helpless and useless?

Congress will have to decide just how much power, in positive language, it's willing to let UN have over our European actions.

Further:

If enough nations are friendly to the United States, or indebted for favors, UN isn't likely to tell us to quit Greek-Turkish aid.

But suppose at some future time Russia reverses the tables and starts pouring money and arms into a European country without consulting UN, until later.

Will we charge Russia with trying to wreck UN? Or what do we do? Or are we here beginning to chop the foundations out from under UN?

When we talk of empowering UN to stop our aid abroad, our sincerity will be judged by the way we do it.

And there's this third important question:

Do we stop trying to halt Communism's march when we help Greece and Turkey? Or where do we go from there? For how long? At what cost?

In short, from now on do we step in to help any country which cries that it's in danger of going Communist? If not, where do we draw the line? No one knows.

We're starting upon a world adventure whose end no man can see.

This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

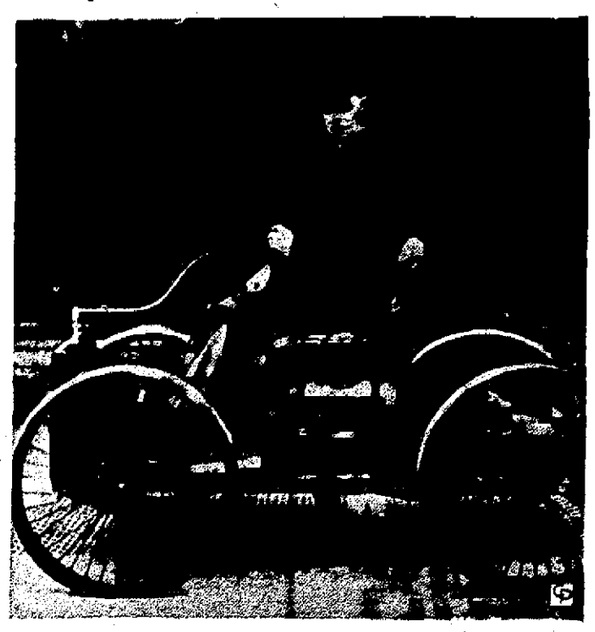
Career of Henry Ford, Genius of Industrial Production, Reviewed in Pictures

SON OF AN IRISH FARMER, Henry Ford was born in this white frame house in Dearborn, Mich., on July 30, 1863. When his mother died, Henry would not listen to his father's protests and abandoned the farm to become a "mechanic." Today this house is a national landmark.



OUT FOR A RIDE in his first auto is Henry Ford, and much had happened since, at 16, he left the farm for a $2.50 a week job in a machine shop. Soon he was installing little steam engines for farmers—like his father—and by 1893 he had managed to piece together his first auto.

AS THE FIRST WORLD WAR neared, the Ford production program was stepping briskly along and Ford had created a sensation with his $5.-a-day wage scale. In 1915, seeking to bring world peace, he sent his "Peace Ship" on a journey doomed to failure and misunderstanding.

THE BOY GREW OLDER and on his 67th birthday he gets together with his good friend, Tom Edison, another American wizard who climbed to fame "the hard way." There was a third in the "big three of American wizards—" Luther Burbank, the famed genius of the plant world.

Death Comes To Henry Ford

tion of the giant aerial bombers reach a level of one an hour.

Ford, who startled the industrial world with his $5 a day minimum wage in 1914, said he never worried about anything excepting Mrs. Ford's well being and that he regarded his victory in the famed Selden patent suit as his outstanding achievement.

Defense of Patent

This was his defense against a suit brought by George B. Selden, an upstate New York lawyer, who charged Ford and other car makers infringed on his patent for a gasoline engine.

Most other car manufacturers paid license fees to the holders of the Selden patent suit but Ford refused. When he was upheld in his action, Ford asserted that without his victory there could be no real automobile industry.

With the exception of Mrs. Clara Bryant Ford, the widow, most of the Ford family was away at the time of the elder Ford's death.

The surviving members of the family, in addition to the widow, are Mrs. Edsel B. (Eleanor) Ford, and her children, Henry II, Benson, William and Josephine Ford.

Edsel Ford, only son of the noted manufacturer, died in May, 1943.

Quit Business Recently

Death came to the elder Ford a little more than a year and a half after he had relinquished all participation in the management of his great company.

When he resigned as president, a post he took over upon the death of his son, Edsel, he said he wanted to devote more time to "personal affairs."

From other quarters, however, it was said that dissatisfaction on the part of the younger Ford generation, particularly Mrs. Edsel Ford, had led to the reorganization of administrative personnel.

Whether this was correct, the elder Ford kept wholly away from the administration offices; he came occasionally to the engineering laboratory and occupied himself in his private workshop.

But in the year and half between his retirement and his death Ford saw many of his pet projects disappear, one by one.

Rubber Project Abandoned

The huge Ford rubber plantation project in Brazil was disposed of after it was said to have caused a loss of more than $4,000,000; so, too, was Ford's soy bean farm project and processing mills within the huge River Rouge plant in nearby Dearborn.

Other undertakings also were liquidated along with the removal of many of the old time Ford personnel.

As these projects were disposed of and the executive personnel reorganized, young Henry Ford II, who succeeded his grandfather as president, said the company proposed to confine itself wholly to the manufacture of automobiles.

In his organization of the company the younger Ford created 10 vice presidents, each with a specific responsibility.

This was in marked contrast to the administrative policy of the elder Ford who named only such officers as were required by law, and kept most of his plans for the company's future in his head.

Estate's Size Unknown

How vast was the estate accumulated by the founder of the great Ford empire may require years to determine.

With his wife, Clara, who will be 80 years old April 11, Ford is understood to have held 58 per cent of the voting stock in the company, while the remainder of the voting shares were held by the heirs of Edsel Ford.

There was, however, a large amount of non-voting stock assigned to the Ford foundation, organized more than a decade ago to promote educational and welfare pursuits.

As an educational project the foundation was tax exempt.

In the absence of a formal family announcement, it was assumed the elder Ford's holdings would go to his widow. At the time of Edsel Ford's death it was generally believed his estate was worth $200,000,000.

Ford Break-Up Predicted

It was widely suggested at the time that payment of the inheritance tax on that estate would necessitate the sale of some of the Ford stock outside the Ford family.

So far, however, the stock still remains within the family and as far as has been publicly disclosed probate of the Edsel Ford estate is still to be completed. Presumably, it will take fully as long to probate the estate of Henry Ford.

Insofar as the destiny of the Ford Motor Co. is concerned, it is generally conceded in industry circles that the passing of its founder will have no effect whatever.

The 29 year-old Henry Ford II is credited with having a firm grip on company affairs and a huge capacity for its successful administration.

The building of millions of motorcars was only a part of the amazing accomplishments of the one-time obscure farm youth who became master of a vast industrial empire reaching into the far corners of the earth and one of the most colossal family fortunes the world ever has known.

His genius—and the huge fortune whose exact extent probably never will become public knowledge—took him into many fields unrelated to motorcars.

A Mechanical Wizard

But he primarily was a mechanical wizard; he believed it was his good fortune to have lived at a time when the world was ready for the mechanical age, and he contributed to that era in huge measure.

He believed, too, that horsepower could be harnessed to do all the labor that for centuries strained men's backs and only partially produced the things they needed.

He was nearing his 40th birthday when he organized the Ford Motor Company. He went from office to office and from shop to shop pleading with friends and acquaintances to join him in the venture. Remembering how the obscure machinist earlier had been ridiculed as a dreamer and a man "with a lot of crazy ideas," only a few cared to join him. He got together $28,000.

Subsequently he was said to have refused $1,000,000,000 for company.

Back In Harness Again

The determination of those days was demonstrated again four decades later in the spring of 1943 when he returned to the presidency of the company upon the death of his only son, Edsel Bryant Ford, who had held that office for nearly a quarter of a century.

At that time he was within a few weeks of his 80th birthday anniversary. His company then had assets of approximately three-quarters of a billion dollars.

It was understood he took over the executive responsibilities then only until another Henry Ford—his grandson—could be groomed for the office of president. The grandson along with two brothers at the time was in the nation's armed services.

His Varied Interests

Always an individualist, Henry Ford had been a railroad owner, a pioneer in commercial aviation, grower of rubber, author, publisher, pacifist, sociologist, mine owner, shipping magnate, lumberman, chemist, manufacturer of farm tractors, cloth, glass and artificial rubber—all made possible by the enormous fortune amassed through the production of low-priced automobiles.

He was an unobstructive individual but of deep seated opinions and firm convictions. Yet he reserved the right to change his mind.

Labor Attitude Changes

Long an unrelentless opponent of labor unions, he reversed himself suddenly in 1941 after the first strike of major proportions in his huge factories, when he signed a contract with the United Automobile Workers (CIO). The agreement not only accorded union recognition but provided for the check-off collection of dues.

There were other major battles besides the Shelden patent affair that Ford, an avowed pacifist so far as human conflict was concerned, won through a stubbornness that grew out of courage in his convictions rather than a desire for controversy. Among these were the quarrel with his early partners over the $5-a-day minimum wage plan with which he startled the industrial world in 1914; his threat to withdraw from the Ford company in 1919 and start a rival firm unless minority stockholders sold out to him; his fight against the threat of Wall Street domination in 1920-21; his first serious illness, in 1932, and his fight against the national recovery act, in 1933-34, which he referred to as "a scheme to turn all industry over to organized labor."

Just as he had many successes, so, too, did he experience many defeats, but Ford rarely appeared disturbed. He abhorred court suits that required personal appearances.

There was the million dollar libel suit Ford brought against the Chicago Tribune in 1919 for calling him an anarchist. The six-cent verdict he won was a bitter victory, for he underwent a grilling on the witness stand that probably marked a new high point for searching questions in an attempt to impeach his intelligence.

Defeated for Senator

Ford was defeated in 1918 for United States senator by a narrow margin; he settled out of court in 1927 a suit brought against him by Aaron Sapiro, Chicago attorney and promoter of farmers' cooperatives. The suit grew from the anti-Jewish campaign conducted in Ford's weekly newspaper, The Dearborn Independent. This paper was discontinued shortly after the suit was settled.

A disappointment rather than a failure was Ford's unsuccessful effort in 1926 to purchase the government's Muscle Shoals property in Alabama. He had ambitious plans for the development of the property both in water power and nitrate production, but his offer was declined after months of acrimonious debate in congress.

From Farm To Autos

Henry Ford was born on a farm in Greenfield township, Michigan; a suburb of Detroit, July 30, 1863. His father, William Ford, was an Irish immigrant; his mother, Mary Litegott, was of Dutch ancestry. Her parents owned land adjoining the Ford farm. Ford had three sisters and two brothers, all younger than himself.

Contrary to popular belief, Ford was not the son of impoverished parents. His father was well-to-do as a farmer, and when Henry married his parents offered him a farm of his own in the vicinity. Young Ford, however, had visions of a career in mechanics. It is somewhat paradoxical that, although he disliked the farm in early life, he went back to it in a large way after an industrial career had brought him enormous wealth. His return to farming, however, was to promote his conviction that agriculture and industry needed each other.

What schooling Ford obtained came from a settlement school near Greenfield and continued until he was 16 years old. Then he left the farm to work in a machine shop in Detroit. Here he could give greater play to an inherent desire to experiment with machinery, the while eking out a living by repairing watches and clocks in the evenings.

Built Home There

Several decades later, after success had come to Ford and he sought a place to build a home, he picked out acreage near his birthplace and ultimately bought up most of the land in the general vicinity of his boyhood pathways. Moreover, it was on the bank of the Rouge river, in the same locality, that he erected the great parent plant of the Ford Motor Co.

From the Detroit machine shop Ford graduated as a stationary engineer. This was in the eighties. About this time he built a threshing machine which he sold to one of his father's neighbors. It was not successful and was junked.

Then, in 1892-93, came the idea of a gasoline-propelled "horseless carriage." Ford completed one with a two-cylinder engine, purely as an experimental model, but, as he expressed it later "the darn thing ran."This crude vehicle, forerunner of the millions of cars which subsequently bore the Ford label, was built in a little brick cubicle in the rear of a double house where the Fords lived in Bagley avenue, Detroit. The structure would have been a "wood shed" except for the fact the Fords and their neighbors burned coal.

Mass Production a Ford Idea

Ford did not invent the automobile; he did introduce mass production that brought the motorcar within the reach of the average man and made of it a utility rather than a luxury.

Ford encountered numerous difficulties after assembling his first vehicle. He heard himself ridiculed for trying to perfect a "contraption" that made noise, frightened horses and emitted smoke as it careened about the streets of Detroit. He carried on, however, obtaining a special permit to drive his machine about the city.

Near the turn of the century, Ford organized his first business enterprise, the Detroit Automobile Co., with a capital of $50,000. As designer of the company's product and holding a one-sixth interest, Ford was made chief engineer. Disagreement over business management led to his resignation after a year with the company.

Builds First Car

He took over a small bicycle shop and began development of what proved to be the first of a long line of cars bearing the Ford name. On June 16, 1903, articles of incorporation for the Ford Motor Company were filed. The company was organized for $100,000, but only $28,000 in cash was paid into the treasury. Twenty years later the company had paid out in dividends approximately $100,000,000 and the stock which had an original par value of $100 a share, was all in possession of the Ford family.

Henry Ford had taken over the minority stock in 1919, paying $12,500 a share to his original associates. One of them, John S. Gray, a Detroit banker, invested $10,500—after a friend had guaranteed him against loss—and sold his stock to Ford two decades later for $26,250,000.

Other early associates included James Couzens, later United States senator with whom Ford quarreled in 1915 and never became fully reconciled. The quarrel was over Ford's attitude on war, war loans and military preparedness, and in 1923 when Ford was boomed for the presidency, Couzens called Ford "unfit for the office."

Minimum Wage Plan Introduced

Outside the Ford family—Henry Ford, his wife and son—the original investments in the Ford Motor Co. made nine multi-millionaires, including Couzens, John S. Gray, Horace E. Dodge and John F. Dodge.

The quarrel over his $5-a-day minimum wage and a profit-sharing plan came to a head in 1919 when some of Ford's associates instituted court action to force a distribution of profits, which Ford proposed to turn back into the business for further expansion. Ford lost in this court case, but his threat to establish a rival company and market an automobile for $250 caused the minority holders to surrender their stock.

Shortly after the minority holdings came into possession of the Ford family, Henry Ford, then 56 years old, turned the presidency of the company over to his son, Edsel, in whose name, incidentally, much of the stock purchased in 1919 was registered. It was only a little more than a year later that the company encountered one of its stiffest battles.

In purchasing the minority stockholdings for a total of $105,000,000 as the world entered the post-war period, Ford had taken a long chance. He had made other heavy investments just prior to the show-down with his associates. He needed money. Wall Street offered it, but with a stipulation. It proposed to name the treasurer of his company and dictate its financial policy. Ford refused.

He fought his way out of the lean period of 1920-21 by plunging into a program of unrestricted production. Cars were shipped to dealers with "collect on delivery" invoices, and Ford rode roughshod through the depression. In weathering this storm he established his independence of banking interests.

Just before this crisis arrived Ford had purchased the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Railroad for $5,000,000. He sold it in 1929 to the Pennroad Co. The price was not announced, but the Ford company claimed $23,601,208 as a "fair return valuation."

Apathetic as Political Candidate

Ford was an apathetic candidate for United States senator in 1918, doing little to further his chances. He was defeated by approximately 4,000 votes by Truman H. Newberry, who later resigned after escaping a prison sentence for conspiring to violate federal election laws which the supreme court held invalid.

In 1923 friends boomed Ford as a presidential possibility. Ford, who had been an ardent supporter of Woodrow Wilson, announced in 1923, his support of Herbert Hoover, then a candidate for the presidency. When Hoover sought re-election in 1932, Ford made a brief radio address in his behalf. It was one of the few times Ford ever spoke in public. Later it was found Ford had failed to register as a voter in his precinct and he was disqualified from voting in the general election.

In 1929 when industrial stagnation began to develop, Ford was one of the business leaders summoned by President Hoover to devise means of checking the economic crisis. Recalling how he had driven through the depression of 1920-21, Ford announced in 1929 that he would raise his minimum wage to $7 a day. This remained in effect for 22 months and was said to have cost Ford $33,000,000. In 1931, the minimum of $6 a day was restored. The following year is was reduced to $4 a day. In March, 1934, it went back to $5, and on May. 21, 1935, the company restored the $6 minimum.

"Retired" in 1919

Ford, who theoretically "retired" in 1919, when he turned the presidency of the Ford Motor Co. over to Edsel Ford, found the years that followed perhaps the busiest of his life. He purchased the Lincoln Motor Car Co. plant at a receivers' sale in 1922; he launched the first of his big shipping fleet in 1924; he began growing rubber is Florida in 1925 and during the same year purchased 199 idle ships from the U. S. Shipping Board. In 1927 he obtained a huge grant of land from the Brazilian government for rubber growing; he began his "Early American Village" in 1928, and he sponsored a great reception for Thomas A. Edison in 1929.

The reception for Edison was one of Henry Ford's greatest tributes to any one individual President Hoover attended and Edison, already enfeebled, was overcome by the attentions showered upon him. The reception marked the fiftieth anniversary of Edison's perfection of the incandescent lamp.

Illness Follows Health Boast

Ford also sponsored experimental work in the growing of soy beans, from which his laboratories obtained the ingredients for steering wheels, horn buttons, commutator caps, paint and other substances used in the modern automobile.

On his 69th birthday in 1932, Ford boasted "I have never been sick a day in my life." He didn't count injuries sustained in an auto accident caused by a "hit-and-run driver" in 1927.

Less than four months after his boast he was taken to the Henry Ford hospital to undergo an operation for strangulated hernia and infected appendix. The amazing Ford constiution asserted itself and within 48 hours after the double operation the motor king was reading newspapers and joking with members of his family.

Causes Bank Holiday

When Michigan's banking system collapsed in the spring of 1933, foreshadowing the national bank holiday, Ford had on deposit in Detroit banks more than $60,000,000 in cash. Informed that one trust company in which he was interested probably would have to close, Ford is understood to have threatened to withdraw $20,000,000 from one of the city's other large banks if the trust company were permitted to "go under." The state banking holiday followed.

Late in 1933 and during the following year, Ford engaged in a great battle with an economic philosophy that was wholly contrary to his own ideas. It was the National Recovery Act. The fight against the NRA and its chief, General Hugh S. Johnson,

(Turn to DEATH, Page 12)

A MAN OF SIMPLE TASTES and homespun philosophy, Henry Ford did much to preserve Americana and keep American folk music and dances alive. His famous fiddlers and square dances attracted national attention. Here, with Mrs. Ford, he swings into action in an old quadrille.

IN THESE TWO FAMILY GROUPS, at top Henry Ford was talking things over with his son, the late Edsel Ford and his grandson, Henry II, who is now in command of the Ford affairs. At bottom, taken during the Christmas holidays, are Henry Ford II, Mrs. Henry Ford and Henry.

ONLY 7 PER CENT OF VETS AT GI SCHOOLS

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 8—Results of a nationwide survey reveal the "distressing" and "pitiful" fact that only seven per cent of the country's ex-servicemen have taken advantage of educational rights guaranteed them under the GI bill of rights, Robert H Owens, nationally known vets' educator, reported today.

Asserting that the time limit on the GI bill opportunities soon would pass, the president of the veterans educational council of the National Education association said only 1,777,541 of the nation's 14 447,000 former servicemen were enrolled in schools under the bill's benefits

Owen cited the disinterest of "patriotic" organizations, the availability of jobs and the lack of facilities in small communities as causes of the small percentage of vets taking advantage of educational benefits

Of Ohio's 851,000 ex-servicemen and women, Owens said, a total of 452 000 had no high school diploma, but only 20 000 have enrolled in schools outside a college campus since their discharge

Army Week

IN COMMEMORATION of our entry into World War I 30 years ago, this is observed as Army week. It is a good time to take stock of the Army as presently constituted and its future role.

The spirit of the times makes it imperative that the Army experience no postwar letdown as it did after World War I. The day of the 30-man battalion practicing with stovepipe mortars and cardboard machine-guns must not come again. We are not likely ever again to be vouchsafed the long training periods possible after our entry in World Wars I and II.

The army must remain an alert and adaptable organization. Atomic bombs, guided missiles and jet aircraft, as well as the possibilities of bacteriological and meteorological warfare, all must come within its purview.

With selective service abandoned, the Army for the present must rely wholly on volunteers. The universal military training plan, which is being studied in an experimental battalion at Fort Knox, may be the answer to the need for a trained reserve army of specialists and technicians. When the Army presents its findings on this experiment, they should be considered in the light of a realistic view of the world situation, not an idealistic vision of what it should be.

Army week is a time for the nation to pause and consider the vast responsibility which rests with the Army and its need for public support.

Please Let It Alone

EXPERIMENTERS monkeying with the manufacture of weather must excuse us for having butterflies on the stomach and palpitation of the heart.

They have gone aloft with 17 pounds of dry ice and precipitated snow and rain weighing hundreds of tons. If they can do that with a basketful of the stuff, what might they do with a truckload?

We don't believe human beings are smart enough to be trusted with weather-making. The threadbare quip that everybody talks about weather but nobody does anything about it is one of the most comforting things we can think of, because we were getting along all right while everybody just talked about releasing the energy in atoms.

Eventually men may be smart enough to handle weather. Until then, please let it alone. This way, if it rains there's no one to blame but nature. No commissions or committees must be set up in a futile effort to keep men and nations out of mischief. We'll never complain about the weather again if those fellows will quit experimenting with it.

Fire Watchers

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S Jefferson Day choice of the phrase "fire watchers," to describe what the United States is doing, was good.

But when Mr. Truman went on to say that the United States must pass along word to the United Nations, which then will quench the flames before they spread over the world, he only added to the confusion already existing about that organizatoin.

The United Nations is a fire department without equipment. It has no trucks, nor firehoses, nor firemen. It is exactly the same dilemma as its predecessor, the League of Nations which, when confronted with the fact of a fire, could do nothing more effectual about it than send a dispirited commission to report on the progress of the blaze.

Sam Is a Growing Boy

THE GREAT discovery being made by Americans in the cold, gray dawn of the postwar years is the high cost of everything they want, including collective security at home and abroad.

The high cost of security at home is particularly shocking. Its most brutal impact is on taxpayers who expected substantial relief after the war and are going to get, instead, fresh jolts in the teeth.

Every village, town, city, every township, county and state have the same problem of fitting prewar taxes to postwar needs. People want new streets, new public buildings, new public facilities of all kinds. They want more services, more public welfare, more subsidies, bigger handouts, larger armies, navies and international prestige and power to Patagonia a growing boy; he has grown out of his prewar and all points of the compass. Uncle Sam is tax clothing.

On one hand are politicians ringing the changes on tax reduction while yelping for everything calculated to cost more money. On the other hand are earnest officials trying to make ends meet and wondering how long it will take the politicians and their clients who insist on having something for nothing to come to the end of their insanity.

If the United States is going to be half the country it thinks it can be, someone must put up the money. Americans can't have national expansion and tax reduction too.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

New Deal Errs in Interpreting Constitution.

WASHINGTON, April 8—New Dealers in the past have tried to interpret the legal guarantees of the Constitution illogically and unnaturally, by applying them socially, for instance. The Constitution supposed that socially you would choose what you wish, and can get. The New Dealers thought they could make everyone equally acceptable socially—a cruel defect in their reasoning, impossible of enforcement. Equality could not be attained any more socially than all people can be provided economically the same. This was their common distortion of the constitutional guarantee of common economic liberty to do things for yourself. The Constitution did not guarantee wealth—only legal right to pursue same. It did not guarantee happiness—only legal opportunity to pursue same. It did not amend all the greater laws of God or nature—but acted in consonance with same.

The New Dealers might say these constitutional rights were granted only to an extent—and constitutional liberty was granted only to an extent "compatible with liberty, justice and economic security for their fellows." This is true enough, but not in their meaning or in the illogical deductive reasoning they draw from the plain fact. Their reasoning destroys the plain, simple original meaning.

Broad Doctrine Wanted

You can see this in the following considerations. The constitutional guarantees were written under the theory that the broadest possible doctrine was necessary to provide freedom for the individual; whereas the New Dealers argue that the least freedom for the individual is apt to be necessary to make it compatible with state necessities. The original constitutional theory was that the least government is the best government; the New Dealers believe the most government may be the best government. The two theories are exactly opposite.

The Constitution did not pretend to be the last word. It was amended before the ink was dull and has been amended 22 times since, but it did have a theory which was never amended. This was the theory that the voluntary actions of free individuals brought better living results than the actions imposed on individuals by leaders. One man could not know it all. To gain this professed and desired result, it restrained individual liberty only to make it compatible with the simplest common necessities of the state. Freedom obviously does not mean a blank license to individuals to murder, pillage or even act against the simple common necessities of society to walk on sidewalks and not spit in the street. We wanted order and progress and the Constitution tried to allow us to gain these ends by installing a rule in which the restraints were on those commonly acceptable to the people—acceptable under their own free will. We passed such amendments as the one giving women the right to vote.

Expansion of Freedom

This was an expansion of constitutional freedom, a step designed to expand the original theory in the common interest. Once we adopted an amendment prohibiting the use of alcoholic liquors. We thought man should not have the right to drink if he chooses. We later considered this a mistake after some experience and repealed that amendment. Certainly that amendment was restrictive of individual liberty, moving in a direction opposite the suffrage amendment. Prohibition was a contraction of individual liberty, one we came to consider an unnatural one. The suffrage amendment was a liberalization of the original theory.

So I say until the professed liberals—the New Dealers who have formed "Americans for Democratic Action"—learn the meaning of the words liberalization and liberalism, their definitions will be just as confusing and vague as the recent pronouncement by their new group. (See yesterday's column). How can they define what they do not know? Until they learn, they can never be liberal.

The philosophy of the American system has been corrupted to an unbelievable extent in current thinking. The framers were particularly wary about freedom of press and religion. They did not say: "Only those newspapers supporting the administration shall have newsprint." They did not say one type of newspaper knows it all. They recognized there would be opposition even to themselves then in charge of the government. They gave the opposition equal freedom. On religion, the philosophy of the constitution recognized there would be many sects, including whatever the various framers personally believed at the moment.

They did not say one religion knows it all. They provided freedom for all, but particularly for their own opposition. This is sound philosophy because their individual freedom really could only be perpetuated by maintaining common freedom. Those who create the sword shall die by the sword.

The New Dealers were always confused about freedom and they nearly extinguished it by strange and unnatural new interpretations in many lines against the simplest understanding of the terms. Dictatorship can capture this last stronghold of freedom by similar means, utilizing the framework of democracy to crush opposition and establish one party government.

Just a Minute

Why Don't You Speak For Yourself, Joe?

Secretary of State Marshall recently was thrown a kiss by a Moscow ballerina.

It was, so far as I can determine, the first friendly gesture he's received since arriving.

And even then, one supposes, the manager popped up to point out that all such opinions are those of the performers and do not necessarily reflect the views of the Kremlin.

Incidentally, the ballet in question was Tschaikowsky's "The Nutcracker," but there is no indication to date that Secretary Marshall got any workable ideas.

The treatment he has been accorded is unprecedented outside the mouthwash ads.

There are signs of spring in Moscow, but no evidence of an official thaw.

How Marshall must yearn for his military days, when it was the enemy with whom one fought.

Priming the World's Pump

By RAYMOND MOLEY

SAN FRANCISCO, April 8—A thoughtful businessman here said yesterday, in commentating on President Truman's Greece-Turkey proposal: "The long-time policy of this country is apparently to save free enterprise and capitalism by priming the pumps of the world. We shall succeed if production and trade revive in the various countries that we help. And we may even get some of our money back. If the pumps fail to lift their own water after the priming, the effect on our own economy may be very serious."

An eastern economist recently used the expression "recapitalizing the world" to describe the Truman doctrine. Franklin Roosevelt used to say repeatedly that his New Deal spending measures were designed to save capitalism and that it was a pity capitalists failed to appreciate his efforts. Truman is doing much the same thing on a world scale, apparently with less opposition.

Clearer View

If we look beneath the surface of political events, the economic foundations of our whole foreign policy become clearer. Capitalism is threatened almost everywhere, except in a few countries which escaped the orbit of the war. The capital accounts of many nations are badly impaired. They are run down by disuse or other use. The assumption of this government is that the United States is the only source of new capital. And if the capital is not made available, the people of the impaired countries will slip into the despairing efforts of collective action within themselves. That is, in essence, what communism is. Speaking in economic terms, that is what is meant when we say the peoples of the world are choosing between alternative ways of life.

The Truman administration seems to assume that when a country accepts capitalist assistance, it also accepts the political and economic philosophy of the western nations. Capitalism has a great initial advantage over communism. It can allow the nations within its sphere much greater leeway in arranging their internal political systems. Monarchies, republics and semi-socialist states like Denmark or Sweden can live within a capitalist world. They cannot remain the same under the economic setup of communism. Ours, therefore, is a looser system. It asks only that tranquility be maintained and that social and political change be conducted with the gradualness which has so long characterized the British tradition.

Rubber Instead of Iron

It is not strange that Soviet politicians are both annoyed and frustrated by this flexibility of capitalism. It is, in a sense, a rubber wall, as opposed to an iron curtain. The true Russian communist is desperately afraid of capitalist infiltration—much more so than is the capitalist of communist infiltration. But the Russians can do little about the recovery of capitalist countries, except to annoy them by communist implantations. Russia is in no position to move beyond its area of military dominance with loans of money or goods. Nor is it in a position to invade the countries that we elect to aid.

In the light of this conflict of economic philosophies, we can easily see the reasons for our various moves in foreign policy. Secretary Marshall is, at this moment, trying to make it clear to the Soviets that Germany cannot pay the amount and kind of reparations they are demanding. That is because a capitalist country cannot produce for export unless it receives essential materials in imports. It cannot produce at all, if the tools are to be taken away as reparations.

The ultimate question in our efforts to keep the western world and China out of the communist orbit is the extent to which the United States can supply the needed capital. And the answer to that is not so much our capacity to lend and give as the capacity of the aided countries to help themselves and to repay us, in part at least, in revised trade.

We are embarked on a great adventure. If we move with discretion, we shall have many advantages.

Truman and Monroe Doctrines

By WALTER LIPPMANN

THERE is this most critical difference between President Monroe's message of Dec. 2, 1823, and President Truman's of March 12, 1947: Monroe made his declaration only when he knew beyond a reasonable doubt how the commitment was to be met, indeed that there was virtually no chance whatever that he would be unable to meet it.

The Monroe Doctrine, unlike the Truman, was preceded by negotiations abroad and by cool and studied consultation at home in which Jefferson, Madison and John Quincy Adams played the leading parts.

They approved the declaration when they had before them the definite assurance, given in August to the American minister, Rush, by Canning, that Great Britain, then in undisputed command of the sea, had decided to prevent the reconquest of the Spanish colonies in the Western Hemisphere. It was then, when Jefferson had read the dispatches from Rush about the British decision, that he approved what became the Monroe Doctrine, saying that "all Europe combined would not undertake such a war, for how could they propose to get at either enemy (Britain or the United States) without superior fleets."

Madison was equally definite and practical in realizing that it was the assurance of overwhelming power which justified the commitment: "It is particularly fortunate," he wrote to President Monroe, "that the policy of Great Britain, though guided by calculations different from ours, has presented a co-operation for an object the same with ours. With that co-operation we have nothing to fear from the rest of Europe, and with it the best assurance of success to our laudable views."

Truman Document

The Truman doctrine expresses our laudable views. But unlike the Monroe Doctrine it has been declared to the world without the kind of careful calculation of the assurances of success which were made by Jefferson, Madison, Adams and Monroe before they announced their laudable views. The difference is a big one—between making a promise which you know you can carry out, and making a promise first, and then wondering how you are going to carry it out. It is the difference between bold but astute statesmanship and reckless rhetoric.

As a result Senator Byrd has asked the administration a question which is quite proper but, under the so-called Truman doctrine as it now stands is quite unanswerable. Senator Byrd wants to know whether "we have the resources alone to pay the bill."

What bill? The immediate bill for Greece alone is nearly $300,000,000. But under the administration policy this can be only the first installment. The money is to be used to balance the Greek budget this year on behalf of a government which collected almost no taxes and is with our approval, conducting a civil war.

Conceivably this installment would pay the Greek bill if there were set up promptly in Athens a government which can collect taxes and can unite the bulk of the Greek people. But the deficits of this government, which protects the profiteers and is trying to crush the republicans as well as the Communists, will continue as long as the government, as now constituted and conducted, exists.

Yet Greece is only a pin point in the Truman global policy. There can be no end to the financial costs of that policy because adequate precautions have not been taken to see to it that the money will accomplish the purposes for which it is given. Unless the Greek government is reformed, Greece will not be stabilized by our meeting the deficits of that government.

Illustrates Basic Fallacy

The case of Greece illustrates concretely the basic fallacy of the Truman doctrine in its present uncorrected, unqualified and unbalanced form. It is that the expansion of the Soviet Union and the spread of Communism can be checked by subsidizing all the governments, parties, factions which are most undeniably anti-Communist. A policy of this kind is bound to fall because it commits us to an alliance with the most reactionary forces in the world and alienates the moderate and democratic forces.

It assumes that mankind is divided into totalitarian Communists and Jeffersonian Democrats. It is not. There are also Nazis, Fascists, feudal lords, war lords. There are also republicans, enlightened conservatives, liberals, progressives, social democrats, socialists, Christian democrats, co-operators, labor parties, democratic planners, and what not.

If we conduct the Truman policy on the principle that whoever is most vehemently against the Russians is our friend and ally—and in his heart a Jeffersonian Democrat—we shall separate ourselves from the masses of the people almost everywhere.

We shall have embraced the extremists of the right as against the extremists of the left, when it is our interest and our duty to align with the middle and the moderate parties. They are our real friends in the struggle for freedom, and they will decide the issue.

Rich as we are, and powerful as we are capable of being, we are not rich enough to subsidize reaction all over the world or strong enough to maintain it in power. The American people and the Truman administration do not want to do that, of course, nor do they think they are doing it. But that is what we shall be doing, nevertheless, if we entrust the formulation and execution of the new policy to men whose zeal has gotten the better of their judgment.

Daily Bible Thought

We are as young as our enthusiasms and interests, cynicism makes us old, but faith and trust free us from fear, hatred ages, love renews our youth: "Who satisfieth thy mouth with good things, so that thy youth is renewed like the eagles."—Psalm 103:5.

The Committee of Thirteen on What's Wrong with the Press.

Gents: Well, I have waded through your report, "Four Years Through the Newspapers with Birdshot and Tweezers," or "Is the Inside Harder Than It Looks From Outside," and, as a man who has spent his life in the newspaper business, I can only express that I am dismayed from your findings than are the men who put up the $350,000 for the job. All I can say is that it is a good thing for him that no member of your committee is in a spot where he has to run a newspaper that will meet a pay roll and hold readers.

I would think that somewhere on a committee wanting the straight dope about newspapers there would have been room for a newspaperman (dead or alive), but nobody connected with the business was ever permitted on the team even as a third-string substitute. I noted that a poet, a general railroad counsel, quite a few college heads and philosophers, and a professor of anthropology (monkey business), and what gets me is how Harold Ickes and Fiorello LaGuardia got left off.

You find the freedom of the press is in danger and you are right; only, as I see it, the danger is from bright ideas from the amateur and semi-pro leagues, general badgering by one and all, and too much loose promiscuous use of the tomahawk and harpoon by people who would have trouble getting up a readable pamphlet on the joys of life in Bali Bali. You find that the number one danger is because "the press is generally occupied with the sensational, and a citizen is not supplied with the information and discussion it needs to discharge his responsibilities to the community."

Did you ever try getting out a newspaper just to supply John Q Citizen with such information and discussion you felt would enable him to discharge his responsibilities. If so I do not need to be told you fasted almost ten days, owing to the fact there is nothing a newspaper will drop faster than a sheet which he discovers is mainly bent on making a different man of him.

Next you charge that "news is twisted by emphasis on firstness and by the personal interests of the owners and by pressure groups." I don't know what this "firstness" is unless you mean getting the biggest news in ahead of other things so I will skip it, but this charge that news is twisted by the owners and pressure "groups" is an old one which could have been dug up for less than $300,000, and it is, broadly speaking, a corny lie. For every paper where an owner messes with the news there are fifty where he does nothing of the kind. And for every owner or editor who will allow a pressure group to get to first base there are fifty who will throw them out on their ears.

What gets me most, however, is your recommendation that the Government "ease the way for new publications." From all I can gather it is almost impossible to drive a smart man into the newspaper business today and has been for the last fifteen years. You can scare any intelligent man out of a year's growth by offering him a publishing plant free of charge.

Well, like I say, the report is a big disappointment to me, except that it tends to perpetuate the old slogan "When in doubt blame your newspaper owner," and he wouldn't feel right if the custom passed out.

Yours,

ELMER.

BABE RUTH is to appear in a movie written around his life. The script will obviously have to have socko.

We understand that the Ruth appearance will not be in film version of "The Bat," but that the idea of calling it "The Seldom Late George Sockly," is under consideration.

13,000,000 Other Guys

By TRUMAN TWILL

We have been musing over our selective service registration cards which now can be thrown away safely, it said somewhere. A lot of things have happened since Oct. 16, 1940, the day daddy marched bravely to the precinct polling place to make himself available for Armageddon.

"Be alert," the card said. "Keep in touch with your local board. Notify local board immediately of change of address. Carry this card with you at all times."

For the next two years we spoke to the red-haired girl who made out the card, but that was the extent of our alertness. The fact she didn't speak back had something to do with our apathy. She probably didn't recognize us. She wrote on the card that our complexion was right, our hair black, our eyes green. Our complexion is sallow, hair non-existent, and our eyes are invisible behind a pair of dirty cheaters.

There also was a mistake about our race, which is given on the card as white. We are a second generation Indian and a chief in our own right—Chief Lurking Under a Bush. If the forces of democracy had needed us, this might have been a serious oversight. We speak a tribal dialect and can track wild game if it leaves tracks. In short, we were scouting material.

On June 16, 1941, we were classified, the high point of our military career. There was created an illusion that we belonged with the cream of the crop, the stuff of which heroes are made. We waited anxiously for the signal to leave for training camp, but they didn't draw the right number. The next card was mailed when things were tough—Jan. 25, 1944. It wouldn't be long now. Ma sewed the buttons on our underwear and we practiced saluting.

By March 30 there had been a hitch. We were demoted. It began to sound like evasion of the question. We've forgotten now what all the letters and numbers meant; they changed too often. Every time a new card was delivered there were tearful telephone calls to daddy to come home and find out the worst.

By November the strategists had decided that T. Twill, the greatest armchair strategist of his generation, should be saved for World War III. The final card announced that bearer had been classified 4-A indefinitely. That was the end of the war, as far as any personal heroism was concerned. In the final analysis we were reduced to what we had been, from the beginning—a waste of effort as far as any usefulness to the nation in a time or trouble was concerned.

If it hadn't been for our air raid warden helmet, the whole war would have been something that happened to 13 million other guys—bless them all for doing what we couldn't have done if we'd been the last one on earth to do it.

Weather Holds Up First Workouts of Marion Cubs

By GEORGE ROEST

Rainy weather postponed the scheduled Marion Cub first spring practice which was to have been held at Lincoln park yesterday. The diamond was not sloppy but it had not dried enough to hold up under cleat pounding.

Warm-up drills had been planned by Manager Nelson Burbrink and he had figured on a skull session in the locker rooms if the field was not fit for practice.

To Try Again Today

Because of the forced delay, today has been marked as the opening of spring practice.

Workmen at the field yesterday estimated it would take about two days of warm spring weather to dry the playing field so that it would be ready for workouts. Burbrink said he would hold practices in the grassy outfield or along the strip of lawn just outside the park.

Yesterday players were pouring into Marion all day and the new manager spent the day with Cub Prexy W. Dexter Hazen meeting them as they reported in. This morning the number of players who have showed up had swelled to 29.

Players Listed

Following is a list of the players who have reported:

Pete Edmiston, 21-year-old pitcher, the only local listed on the roster. Last year he played with Stanford and turned in impressive performances. He is 5-11½ and weighs 182. He inked a contract with the local outfit earlier this year.

Bob Meyers, 19 year old third baseman from Lorain, had a little experience with Statesville before joining the Navy. He is a left-handed batter and throws right. Aside from baseball he has been active in other sports, playing halfback on the Lorain High school team and forward and center on the cage squad.

Bob Boddy, 21, was here in 1944 and has returned this season. He is an infielder, is 5-8 inches tall and weighs 150 pounds. He bats and throws right.

Earl Richardson, 22, of McConnelsville is an outfielder. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 180 pounds. He is a southpaw.

Edgar Darke, 22, of Malta, O. is also an outfield prospect. He is 6 feet and weighs 165. He is a right-hander.

Aaron Gray, 19, of Kanakee, Ill., is an all around infielder and was with Statesville last season. He is 5-9 inches tall nad weighs 156. He bats and throws right.

Infielder and Catcher

Bruce Adams, 19, also of Kanakee is listed as an infielder and a catcher. He is 5-10½, weighs 160, and is a right-hander.

William J. Bolduc, 18, of Cambridge, Mass. is a mound candidate. He bats and throws right and is 5-8 and weighs 178.

Winston Brandell, 22, of St. Louis is also a pitcher. He stands 5-11 inches weighs 168, and bats and throws right.

Mansfield Pitcher

James Regula, 18, towering pitcher from Mansfield is six feet and five inches tall tilting the scales at 200 pounds. He's a right hander.

William J. Rosin, 21, of Birmingham, Mich. bats right, throws right and is a pitcher. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 180.

Frank Smith, 18, of Watertown, N. Y. bats right, throws right, stands 6-3, weighs 170 and is another mound prospect.

Roy Altman, 19, of Chicago was recently released from the armed services. A lefty, he stands 6-1 and tips the scales at 185. He is a pitcher.

James Forbes Jr., 19, also from Chicago, is a first sacker. He is six feet tall and weighs 155.

Cardington Player Back

Dick Pace, 20, of Cardington played with Marion in 1944 and was with Statesville last season. He is six and weighs 160. He is a mound candidate.

Paul Strohl, 20, of Radnor is a right-hander and a pitcher. He is 5-9 and weighs 178.

John Sowco, 22, is from Chicago and an outfielder. He is 5-11, weighs 165, bats and throws right.

Gerald Peters, 21, of Buffalo is six feet and weighs in at 180. He is a right-hander and pitched in the Buffalo Municipal league last year.

Another Buffalo Player

Another from Buffalo is Chester Luucki a catcher. He is 5-11½ inches tall and weighs 185. He was also with the Municipal league.

Thomas H. Johnson of Wilkes Barre, Pa. is a right-hander and a moundsman. He stands 5-10 and weighs 160. He is a second baseman.

Leeland Brown, 21, of Kanakee, Ill. is a pitcher. He stands 5-11 inches, weighs 160, and is a left-hander.

Eugene Bobzean, 21, of Holland, O. bats and throws left, stands 5-11 inches tall, weighs 160, and is a shortstop.

Infielder from Saginaw

Vito T. Tutera, 20, of Saginaw, Mich. is 5-6 inches tall and weighs 163. He is an infielder and bats and throws right.

Alex Kolbicka of Ashley, Pa. is a lefthander at the bat and throws right. He is 5-11 inches, weighs 175, and an outfielder.

Kenneth Blarr a first baseman, is in Marion and the Chicago Cubs are expected to send his contract shortly.

Other players here for the start of spring conditioning are Johnny Tate and Joe Suknaic, the first two to arrive in Marion.

Board Seeks CPA Approval Of Silver St. School Project

Improvements which call for remodeling work at the Silver Street building and installation of a heating system at Glenwood school, approval of a recommendation of the Civic Planning association that plans get under way for the new senior and junior high school buildings and the opening of bids for the installation of fluorescent lights were matters of business which came before the board of education in the monthly meeting yesterday afternoon at the administration building on South Prospect street.

Other business included the adoption of text books, the approval of Dr. L. C. Wright, president of Baldwin Wallace college at Berea as speaker for the annual commencement exercises on June 6 and the swearing in of E. Paul Bachman as a member of the board by Clerk D. J. Torrance.

Supt. E. E. Holt reported that applications have been filed with CPA for permission to remodel the Silver Street school during the 1947 vacation and also to install a heating system at Glenwood this year. The board approved a proposed contract with the Johnson Service Co. of Cleveland for the installation of temporary control equipment at Glenwood as a part of the heating system at a cost of $3,098. The contracts will be authorized as soon as permission has been received from CPA it was agreed.

Favor Start on Plans

Ben T. Wiant and Forrest Sharrock, representing the Civic Planning association brought recommendations from that organization that an architect be authorized to proceed with preliminary plans for the new senior and junior high schools. This part of the work, they pointed out will require much time, thought and work, and that it was the opinion of the association that this part of the program should be getting under way.

The recommendation was approved by the board.

Bids for the installation of some 500 fluorescent light fixtures in elementary and junior high schools as a part of the school program approved by the voters last November, were rejected and specifications on a fixture of a different type of construction will be drawn up and submitted for bids.

The following is the tabulation of bids received: Van Atta Supply Co., $30, (Louverlite); Triple Service Co., $30.17, (Mitchell); R. L. Andrews, $34, (Mitchell), $32, (Modern), $29.70, (Globe KG714), $35.15, (Globe KG1259); United Electric Supply Co., $31.50, (General Electric), $31.39, (Skylight), $33.17, (Mitchell), all complete with tubes; Frank Piatt, $43.53; A. B. Creasap, $32.88; Allen Electric Co., Cleveland, $30.75, (Mitchell), $28.50, (Wakefield); Westinghouse Electric, Columbus, $33.17, (Westinghouse) and $32.41, (Mitchell). The bid of the Ohio Public Service Co. was not considered as it was for a different type of construction.

Teacher Appointed

Upon the recommendation of Supt. Holt the resignation of Mrs. Betty J. Davis, teacher at Glenwood, effective March 7, was accepted and the appointment of Miss Maxine Cashell to fill the vacancy was approved by the board. Approved also was the appointment of Miss Mary Jane Llewellyn and Marilyn Beal as teachers for the school year of 1947-48. Upon the recommendation of the committee, Principal A. C. May and E. Paul Huffman, the board adopted the study book, "A New Solid Geometry," published by Benjamin H. Sanborn and Co. During the meeting a letter was read from the veterans who made up a night school class in American history and Principal May, expressing appreciation for the course. Nineteen of the 24 veterans enrolled completed the course. The class was taught by Clark Fouts, principal at Silver Street school.

Supt. Holt called the board's attention to an article in the American Vocational Journal by L. H. Rieker, coordinator of vocational education at Harding High school, dealing with the various activities of the school. He also reported plans are nearing completion for the annual vocational guidance conference to be held for pupils of the public and parochial schools next Friday when approximately 60 men and women from various professions and industries will take part in the program. Permission was given Greenwood Evangelical church to conduct a vacation Bible school at the Mark Street school during June. The board also discussed rebuilding the track at Harding stadium but took no action.

Bills in the amount of $11,601.02 were approved. Major items included the purchase of coal at a cost of $3,433.32, books $1,038.28 and utilities $1,429.73.

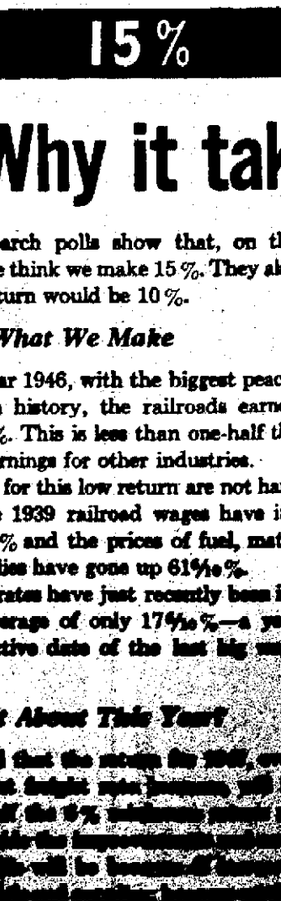
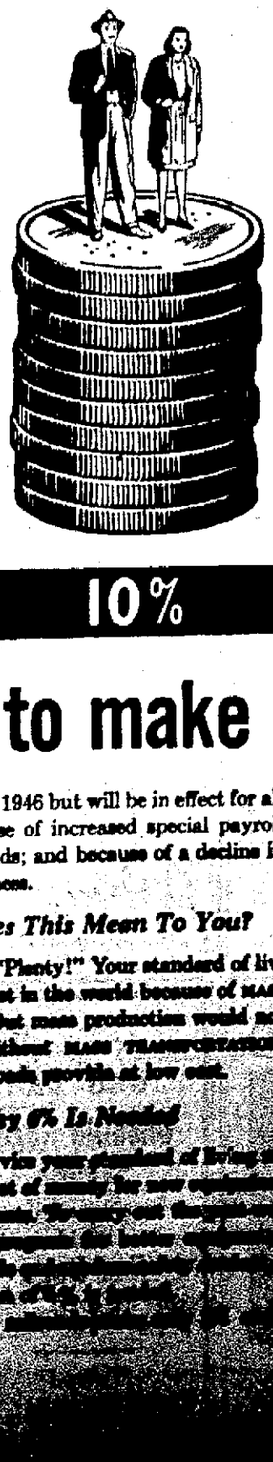
What do you think railroads make?



The public thinks we make 15%

What do you think they should make?

The public thinks 10% would be fair



What are the facts?

Actually the railroads earned only 2¾% in 1946.

To provide the service you want, railroads need to earn at least 6%. But estimates indicate that even with the recent freight rate increase, the return for 1947 will be only about half that requirement.

15% 10% 2¾%

Why it takes 6% to make the grade...

Impartial research polls show that, on the average, people think we make 15%. They also think a fair return would be 10%.

What We Make

But for the year 1946, with the biggest peacetime traffic in history, the railroads earned only . . . 2¾%. This is less than one-half the comparable earnings for other industries.

The reasons for this low return are not hard to find. Since 1939 railroad wages have increased 52⁹⁄₁₀% and the prices of fuel, materials and supplies have gone up 61⁹⁄₁₀%.

But freight rates have just recently been increased an average of only 17⁹⁄₁₀%—a year after the effective date of the last big wage increase.

What About This Year?

It is estimated that the added fuel, even with the recent freight rate increase, will be only about half the 6% railroads should earn if they are to do the transportation job required. Much of the increase in fuel, supplies, taxes and wages granted in 1946 was for only part of 1946 but will be in effect for all of 1947; because of increased special payroll taxes on railroads; and because of a decline in passenger business.

What Does This Mean To You?

The answer is "Plenty!" Your standard of living is the highest in the world because of MASS PRODUCTION. But mass production would not be possible without MASS TRANSPORTATION, which the railroads provide at low cost.

Why 6% Is Needed

The kind of service your standard of living requires takes a lot of money for new equipment and improvements. To get it, the railroads must, [illegible] on each $1.00 of their net property investment, it concerns you.*

The funds for future new equipment and improvements must come from railroad earnings and also from investors. They will furnish money on reasonable terms only if they have confidence in the future earnings of the railroads.

Social Affairs

CLOSING the 1946-47 season of the Lecture-Recital club last night was a social event and program by Columbus musicians held at the home of Mrs. Warren J. Wise on East Church street. Arrangements were in charge of the social committee and Mrs. R. E. Musser program chairman.

Groups of vocal numbers by Mrs. Helen VanLoon Knoteff of the faculty of Ohio State university's music school, accompanied by Miss Gertrude Kuenzlins, also of Ohio State, and a talk on "International Trend in Music Today," by Mrs. Herbert Mooney of the teaching staff of that school, made up the program. Mrs. Mooney, the former Miss Miriam Smart of Marion, illustrated her talk on the influence on America music of German, French and Russian composers by playing numbers by Brahms and Debussy and a composition by a contemporary American musician.

Mrs. Mitchell's interpretation of lighter German and English numbers was received with appreciation by her hearers, and their applause called for encore. Miss Kuenzlins shared also in the expression of appreciation of the audience.

Numbers sung by Mrs. Mitchell, soprano, included "Air Chloe," Mozart, "Bist du bei mir," Bach, "Du mein so gleve," Mozart, and "The Lark Now Leaves His Watry Nest," Parsons; "Standchen," "Feldeinsamkeit," "Der Gang zum Liebchen," and "Vergebliches Standchen," all by Brahms; "A Little China Figure," Leoni; "Thine or Mine," Scott; "Evening Prayer," Montemezzi; and "Love Went a-Riding," Bridge and "The Pasture," Curry. Following the program, Mrs. A. C. Biron, outgoing president, introduced Mrs. Clara Campbell, newly-elected to head the executive officers for the next season, and presented her the president's pin. Both spoke briefly, then presentation of a gift from the club was made to Mrs. Biron by Mrs. Campbell.

Luncheon was served by candlelight from the dining table decorated with a four-section arrangement of flowers in low crystal containers with four tall white tapers grouped at the center. Corner lighted tapers were placed on the buffet and a smaller arrangement graced the table. Mrs. Wise presided. Assisting with the luncheon were the social committee chairman and members, Mrs. E. P. McAfee, Mrs. Charles Ferner, Miss Marguerite Cumming, Mrs. R. D. Hancock and Mrs. Eleanor Smith. Members of the program committee with Mrs. Musser were Mrs. Fanny Benson and Mrs. Carver M. Patton.

OFFICERS for the new year were elected when Mrs. Ronald Selander entertained the Child Life Circle of the Child Conservation League Monday evening at Rogers Inn. Mrs. John Humphreys was elected president; Mrs. Lloyd Rickle, vice president; Mrs. Judson Kerr, secretary; and Mrs. J. Russell Nickel, treasurer.

Members responded to roll call by giving "sunny sayings." Plans were made to attend the spring conference to be held Thursday at Upper Sandusky, with Mrs. Rickle as the representative of the circle. For the program, Mrs. Kerr presented a paper on "Cheerful Obedience," and a discussion followed. At the May meeting at the home of Mrs. Ray Bettener on Forest street, new officers will be installed.

A contribution of $5 was made to the cancer fund by the Carpe Diem club when Mrs. Donald Tower entertained Wednesday at her home at 209 Merchant avenue. Devotions were conducted by Mrs. C. M. Peterson and roll call was answered with Bible verses. The program, in charge of Mrs. Paul Lill, consisted of the following numbers: a song by the group; song by Miss Marilyn Nagley, reading, "What the Little Girl Said," by Mrs. L. A. Williams; piano solo, "The Chase," by Miss Nancy Lou Tower; reading by Mrs. A. J. Loudenslager; a piano duet, "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," by Mrs. Tower and Mrs. G. C. Young; and a song by the group. In a contest conducted by Mrs. Charles Bricy, the award was won by Mrs. L. A. Williams, and the guessing box, prepared by Mrs. Tower, went to Mrs. D. W. Simmons. Guests were Mrs. Fred Simmons and Misses Marilyn Nagley, Mary Kay Hinaman and Nancy Lou Tower. The next meeting will be May 7 with Mrs. Williams on the Walters road.

Dinner was followed by an evening of cards when the Eclipse Euchre club met Friday evening at Hotel Harding. High honors went to Mrs. Maude Wise and Mrs. Dorothy Williams was consoled. Mrs. Fern Savage received the floating award.

Mrs. Ardelle Scheufler was complimented with a birthday party when the Jolly Time club met Thursday evening with Mrs. Letitia Scheufler on Lee street. The honored guest was presented a gift from the club and also from her secret sister. The evening was spent in playing cards with nours going to Mrs. Goldie Clewell and Mrs. Mary Pine. Mrs. Rachel Woods was a guest. The next meeting will be Thursday with Mrs. Mary Pine on Lee street.

M. W. Midgley of Cleveland has returned home after visiting over the weekend at the home of his mother, Mrs. S. M. Midgley of 140 McWilliams court.

Officials Investigate Hazards of Umpiring

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 8—Prevention officers met instruction from Federal Judge Melt G. Underwood today to inquire into the hazards of umpiring baseball games at Chillicothe reformatory.

The inquiry may determine the extent of punishment to be meted out to L. C. Jones, 21, Dayton, O., who pleaded guilty yesterday to a charge of escaping from the federal institution.

Defense counsel told the court that Jones, a trusty who was due for parole soon, feared for his life when he fled the reformatory last fall following a dispute over a decision he made umpiring a ball game.

The attorney said a gang of inmates gave Jones a beating and threatened to get him "for good" if he complained to officials.

"We are headquartering the project in the country where we can 'keep-our-feet-on-the-ground' and keep our views completely objective," says Mr. Sindlinger in a formal printed announcement of the new enterprise being circulated nationally. "We do not want to find our ideas colored by the pressure of the production line.

"New Entertainment Workshop was created to help producers of motion pictures and plays, and publishers meet the challenge of a public which is becoming more and more discriminating in its choice of entertainment in the face of higher and higher production costs."

Mr. Sindlinger reports that during the last six months NEW has established a staff of qualified and experienced people and has put into practice its new methods for pre-testing the potentialities of stories. He says NEW tested stories are now in production in Hollywood, are playing on Broadway, and are on the nation's bookshelves.

Predicts No Slump Near

Economist Sees Possibility of Painful Price Decline but No Depression.

By The Associated Press

BUFFALO, April 8—Murray Shields, vice president and economist of the Bank of Manhattan Co., said yesterday there was a possibility of "some painful declines in prices if not in production" but minimized the likelihood of a severe or prolonged depression in the immediate future.

In an address prepared for delivery before the National Accounting Conference of the American Gas association and Edison Electric institute, Shields listed the following as danger signals:

1. "A spectacular rise in commodity prices. * * * In the event that basic commodities continue to rise as rapidly as has been the case since January of this year, and if that rise were communicated to other parts of the price structure, we would face a really dangerous situation, for a drop in prices from much higher levels than now prevail might have close-to-disastrous effects."

2. "Business inventories have increased $7,000,000,000 or 25 per cent in 8 months—a rise too fast for comfort."

3. "The behavior of the stock market in the face of an improved labor situation and very substantial 1946 earnings reports. Investors as a group, seem to be something less than enthusiastic about the economic prospect."

4. "There are signs—faint as yet in some cases obvious in others—that consumers have less to spend and spending what they have cautiously."

5. "High taxes and a rising cost of living are taking a terrible toll on the purchasing ability of factory workers as well as recipients of fixed income."

Shields recommended that business follow "reasonably conservative inventory policies and cautious financial and credit policies."

SUPREME COURT RULES NLRB IS TOP AUTHORITY

Supersedes Similar Agencies Set Up By States.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—The supreme court ruled yesterday that the national labor relations act supersedes similar state acts.

In the case bringing the ruling, the New York state labor relations board contended it had authority to require two steel corporations to recognize foremen's unions. The corporations replied that since they were engaged in interstate commerce the national labor relations board alone had authority to determine bargaining units among their employes.

Justice Jackson delivered the court's 6-3 decision. Justice Frankfurter wrote a dissent in which Justices Murphy and Rutledge joined.

The decision was given on appeals by the Bethlehem Steel Company in a case affecting its mill at Lackawanna, N. Y., and by the Allegheny Ludlum Steel Corporation, operator of mills at Dunkirk, N. Y.

Chapters of the Foremen's Association of America asked the state board to certify them as bargaining agents for supervisors in the plants. The firms disputed the jurisdiction of the board, but lost in New York courts. They then appealed to the supreme court.

Connie Mack Still Hasn't Given Up on Cellar-Dwelling Athletics

By FRANK ECK
Associated Press Sports Editor

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla—Connie Mack is 84 years old but he can worry as much as the next manager.

It might appear pathetic to watch an ordinary man of that age trying to run a ball club. But Cornelius MacGillicuddy is not an ordinary man.

Veteran baseball writers who have seen the Philadelphia Athletics and Connie for the last 20 years say the Grand Old Man of Baseball never before worked a club so hard in spring training as he has drilled the A's at picturesque Wright Field.

Finished in Last Place

The A's finished in last place last season—losing twice as many games as they won—and they figure to finish in the American league cellar again. Yet, Mack will not give up on his team.

"We haven't been getting any hitting and we haven't been getting good pitching," says the man who is starting his 47th season as boss of the Athletics. "But I won't give up on this club."

Starting pitchers for the A's will be six foot, four Russ Christopher, Bill Dietrich, Mexican Jesse Flores, Dick Fowler and Phil Marchildon. Other hurlers who will be retained are Joe Coleman who was discovered by Brother Gilbert, the man who sent Babe Ruth to baseball immortality; Everett Fagan, Bill McCahan, John Savage and Carl Scheib.

Warren (Buddy) Rosar again will be the No. 1 catcher with Cuban Fermin Guerra as No. 2.

Rookies in Infield

The infield will have rookies Ferris Fain on first and Don Richmond on third with Eddie Joost and Gene Handley as the double play combination. Utility infielders are Dick Adams, a first baseman, Pete Suder and Henry Majeski, former Yankee. Richmond hit .290 in 16 games last fall and seems to have given the A's additional power at the plate.

However, they were not lacking in hitting last season as Barney McCoskey hit .318 and Elmer Valo .307 to give the Athletics two hitters among the first 10 in the league. And Sam Chapman, Mack's other regular outfielder, drove 20 home runs while hitting .261 after a fine start. Austin Knickerbocker and George Binks, recently obtained from the Senators, will be the reserve gardeners.

BLACKBURN SHIPPED TO MINORS BY TRIBE

Outfielder Who Won Trial by Letter Sent Back.

By The Associated Press

SHEFFIELD, Ala., April 8—Wayne Blackburn, the outfielder who won a trial with the Cleveland Indians by writing a letter to President Bill Veeck, has been ordered to return to Indianapolis of the American Association.

Blackburn was the property of Indianapolis and his stay with the Indians was strictly on a "look" basis.

The minor leaguer made his last appearance in a Cleveland uniform yesterday and scored the winning run as the Tribe edged the New York Giants 2 to 1 before an overflow crowd of 7,000 at Fort Smith, Ark.

A timely triple by Manager Lou Boudreau off Junior Thompson scored Blackburn, who had batted for pitcher Red Embree and walked.

The Giants again outhit the Indians 9 to 6 but they made five errors and their hurlers uncorked a pair of wild pitches.

The triumph was the Indians' third in a row over the Giants and gave them a 6 to 5 edge in the spring series.

CUB TRAINER ALL SET FOR HIS 25TH SEASON

Andy Lotshaw, Who Once Played Here, Still Going Strong.

Still going strong is Andy Lotshaw, who this year begins his twenty-fifth season as trainer for the Chicago Cubs, with whom the local baseball club is affiliated.

The veteran trainer, who played in Marion during his early years in the game, has lost none of his zip, according to a publicity release from the Cub office.

He recently won first prize in an "old fashioned waltz" contest held by the Cubs at their Catalina Island, Calif. training camp.

Babe Ruth Coming Back To Baseball

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 8—Babe Ruth is coming back to baseball—not to the organized league but to serve as "consultant" to the American Legion junior baseball program which this year expects to enroll more than a million boys.

The former home run king, who leaves today for two weeks of "resting and fishing" in Florida, yesterday made his first public appearance since undergoing a serious neck operation last Jan. 6 to sign a contract for the job.

The Babe said "they call me a consultant, but I'm going to work as hard on this program as my health will permit. It's a great responsibility."

Nodding to the baseball writers, he said "They know how I feel about kids. I love kids."

TEAM TO BEGIN PRACTICE

Mayfair Night club baseball team will begin spring practice Wednesday at 6 p. m. at the Marion Power Shovel diamond. Persons wishing to try out for the team, known part of last season as Morton's Ramblers, are asked to attend this first session.

4 Ball Teams To Carry Smitty's Banner

Sponsor Announces Marion Crystals Baseball Team To Play Under Lights: 3 Softball Entries Planned.

A new baseball team will make its debut in Marion this season.

Harold Smith today announced he will sponsor a team to be known as the Marion Crystals. They will play independent and semi-pro outfits from surrounding towns under the lights at Crystal Lake park.

The Marion Crystals will be one of four ball teams carrying Smittys' banner this year.

This will be the first season that Smith has sponsored a baseball team and he also will sponsor an independent men's softball club, a softball team in the city softball commercial league, and an independent girls' softball team.

Last season he had an independent men's softball club and an independent women's softball club.

Had Good Records

The male outfit turned in a record of 27 wins in 37 games and the women finished with a record of 17 wins against six losses.

The roster of the baseball team will include Ted Anderson, Fritz Walters, Dale Culver, Raymond Culver, Wesley Wilcox, Carrol Caris, and Max Roseberry.

All of these performers will be on the independent softball club and the following also will be with the team: Lloyd Hart, Pete Howison, Harrold Millisor and Chuck Reid.

Walters, Dale and Ray Culver, Caris and Roseberry also will play with the team in the Commercial loop and others who will play are Guy Lewis, Martin Lewis and Gene Shellhorn. The players listed with the independent softball team but not the baseball team also will play for the league entry.

Women Sign Up

TWO PICTURES THAT ILLUSTRATE THE STORY OF HENRY FORD'S RISE

IN THE CRUDE LITTLE SHOP, shown at left, Henry Ford wove a dream from bolts and screws and odds and ends of material. In 1903, by working day and night, he turned out a strange looking motor-vehicle which, when tested at dawn—much to the annoyance of neighbors who were awakened by its explosive noises—actually ran. By 1903 he had raised money to back the Ford Motor Co. From this company came the world-famed "Model T" and by 1907 "mass production" was under way—with 15,000 cars a year being turned out. At right is an air view of the huge River Rouge plant—one of America's industrial landmarks. But, meanwhile, had appeared Ford of Canada, Ford of England and Ford of Germany—to say nothing of Willow Run bomber plant that appeared during the war. Until World War II brought about revolutionary industrial changes, River Rouge, hub of the Ford Motor Company, turned out cars—but suddenly came tanks, jeeps, airplane motors and other implements of modern warfare.

VETS TRAINING SCHOOL TO OPEN AT CLARIDON

First Session in Farm Course To Be Held Thursday.

Opening session of a veterans' agricultural training program at Claridon school will be held Thursday at 8 p. m., according to D. T. Mills, county superintendent of schools and chairman of the veterans' agricultural training committee.

Instructor of the course will be Merle Shumaker of Martel. All veterans of the Claridon community who are interested in the program may attend the opening session Thursday night, Mr. Mills office reported.

Two other similar schools are now in operation in Marion county, one at Pleasant township and the other at LaRue.

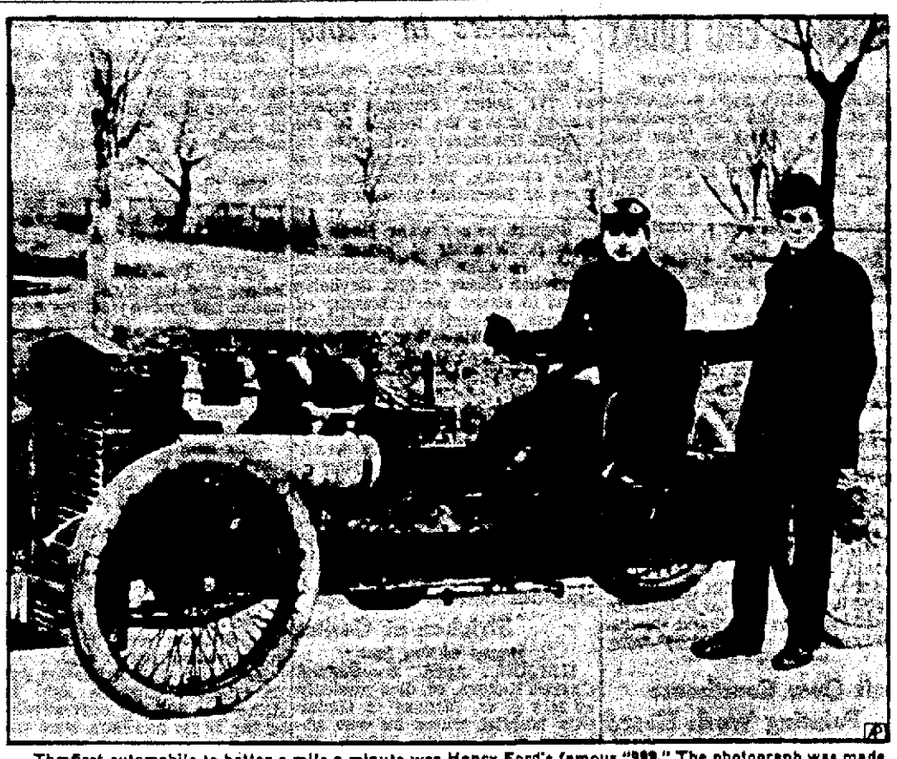
Girl Scout Troop Busy In Vacation Week

During the week of Easter vacation, members of Girl Scout Troop 32 of Oakland Heights school visited a number of business places in the city, accompanied by their leader, Mrs. Hubert Turner, and assistant leaders, Mrs. Edward Craft and Mrs. Smith Neville.

Wednesday, the girls visited the Colonial Hatchery on East Center street where each was presented with two chicks, and also Alber's Super Market. Thursday, they visited the Union Bakery where they were given a treat, and on Friday, the troop laid a trail from the school to the home of Mrs. Neville on the Green Camp pike. This was followed by a nose-bag lunch. Saturday, the girls had an Easter egg hunt at McKinley park and in the evening had a party for their fathers, with the entire families as guests. The girls also held a surpise birthday party recently for their leader, Mrs. Turner.

Abandoned Car Found

UPPER SANDUSKY—A 1937 Ford sedan carrying Georgia license plates was found abandoned along route 30-N three miles east of here. Sheriff B. H. Stansbery has notified Georgia police of the discovery.



The first automobile to better a mile a minute was Henry Ford's famous "999." The photograph was made in 1904, the year in which he drove it a mile in 44.8 seconds on ice at Baltimore Bay, Mich. In races, however, the car was handled by Barney Oldfield, shown at the tiller.

YOUR HEALTH

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D

Skin Disorder

If the old joke about the "cure being worse than the disease" is ever true, it is often true of scabies.

Scabies is a skin disorder produced by a tiny parasite, an active little beast which burrows under the skin and causes a great deal of itching. It is also an extremely hardy organism which can be destroyed only by drugs that are likely to be quite irritating to the skin.

According to Dr. Walter M. Libmann of New York, the ointments containing such substances as benzyl benzoate or sulfur are of this type. They do an excellent job of killing off the parasite, but when used too enthusiastically, too long, or more often than the doctor orders, they frequently lead to complications in the form of skin inflammation. These complications may very often be responsible for symptoms which are almost as severe as the scabies itself.

In treating these skin complications he advised that the patient not be allowed to wear woolen underwear or woolen shirts. The skin is not cleaned with soap and water, but alcohol is used instead.

During the treatment of the dermatitis, the use of substances for overcoming the scabies is stopped. Because of the intense itching and the tendency to scratch, the patient's finger-nails are cut short, and he is urged to keep his finger-nails clean by scrubbing them at least once every day with soap, employing a nail brush.

If there is a great deal of itching present, an ointment of boric acid, lanolin and glycerin is used.

One form of dermatitis which may develop during the course of treatment of scabies is called eczematous dermatitis. In treating this condition, wet dressings of aluminum subacetate have been found quite effective according to Dr. Libmann. This is used for about two days. After this time, he found that ultra-violet ray treatments were quite valuable, and then a mild ointment, such as the one mentioned above may be employed.

Another rash which may occur during the course of the treatment is one which is like impetigo. Blisters form which break open and result in scabs. Wet dressings of penicillin usually will clear up this condition within thirty-six hours.

If boils develop, an ointment of one of the sulfonamide preparations, such as sulfadiazine or ammoniated mercury ointment may be employed. Some of the boils may have to be cut open and the infected material drained out.

If the patient's resistance appears to be lowered, it may be advisable to give one of the sulfonamide preparations by mouth or to give injections of penicillin into a muscle.

Should scabies develop, it is always best that the condition be physician. He will select a preparation for overcoming the scabies which will not be irritating to the patient's skin. The skin of some patients is much more sensitive than that of others. An ointment which may prove satisfactory in one case may prove highly irritating in another.

Mansfielders Tour Capital

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, April 8—An even two dozen boys from Mansfield, O., were sure today that much hard work to raise money for a trip here was a good idea.

Arriving in six automobiles last night, the youngsters set their alarms for an early start this morning on a sight seeking whirl.

They are members of the Mansfield Hi-Y club who spent much of their time during the winter preparing for this day. They sponsored dances, dinners and other affairs and did all manner of chores to fill the "kitty" that assured the trip.

With them were Donald Cram, program secretary of the Mansfield Y.M.C.A., formerly of Marion, and Robert Davis of Mansfield.

The group stopped at Gettysburg on the way to Washington. Once here, they took on a lot of food before the adults in charge hustled them off to bed.

Their route this morning led to Mt. Vernon, Arlington National cemetery, the Lincoln and Jefferson memorials, the Smithsonian Institution and, of course, the Washington monument, not to mention several gigantic government buildings.

A visit to congress was held over until tomorrow. Cram made arrangements for this by writing in advance to the boys' congressman, Rep. McGregor (R-Ohio).

Special cards for admission to the senate and house galleries and the White House were waiting in the congressional office.

was reminiscent in many respects of Ford's battle against the Selden patent. In the face of frequent threats from General Johnson to "crack down" on Ford, the motor magnate resolutely refused to sign the code adopted for the automotive industry, at the same time insisting his company was more than complying with its terms.

Threats of boycott and court action failed to move Ford. Finally the act was ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court. Privately it was said this had been Ford's conviction all along.

Early Marriage, Late Friendships

Ford was married on April 11, 1888, to Clara Bryant, daughter of a neighboring farmer, in Greenfield. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Stephen W. Frishie, of St. Paul's church in the village on the bride's 23rd birthday. Ford was 25.

Edsel Bryant Ford, born in 1893, was their only child.

Ford's greatest interest outside of his far-flung business enterprises for years was his friendship with John Burroughs the naturalist; Thomas A. Edison, the inventor, and Harvey Firestone, tire manufacturer. After Burroughs and Edison died, Ford spent much of his time collecting objects associated with the early lives of his cronies and other early American historical objects, which he transported to Greenfield village.

Ford admired youth, but possibly thinking of the fact that success came to him past middle life, he once remarked:

"You take all the judgment and experience of men over 50 out of the world and there wouldn't be enough left to run it."

credited today by survivors with saving many lives.

The child, identified as Darlene Wick of Portland, Ore., was one of nine persons who lost their lives in the bus-truck wreck. The bus plunged into the Duwamish river.

Survivors said that amidst the screaming and panic inside the partially submerged bus, she stood calmly and in an even voice directed the efforts of volunteer rescuers who cut through the metal top to extricate passengers.

She stood there in the aisle, they said, with the water rising around her.

The help she summoned for her fellow passengers arrived too late, however, to save her life. She was trapped in the wreckage as she attempted to free herself and drowned.

Association With Harding Recalled By Death of Ford

Death of Henry Ford in Dearborn, Mich., last night served to recall at least two visits the famed industrialist made to Marion.

His first visit was at the time of the death of President Harding in 1923. He came here for the funeral services in company with Harvey Firestone, the rubber manufacturer, and Thomas A. Edison.

The four men, Harding, Firestone, Edison and Ford, had long been fast friends and often found time to meet informally. Ford was the last to die.

Some time after the Harding funeral Ford stopped in Marion to call on Dr. George T. Harding, the father of the president. Dr. Harding however, was out of the city. Ford left a note at the Dr. Harding home on East Center street.

J. F. Dombaugh, manager of the Harding home and museum on Mt. Vernon avenue, said today that about three years ago Ford sent the museum a number of photographs showing Harding, Firestone, Edison and Ford relaxing at a picnic. The pictures were taken when the four were on an outing near Hagerstown, Md., in July, 1920, a few months after Harding's inauguration as president.

From B. E. Hutchinson, vice president of Chrysler Corp.:

George Romney, general manager of the Automobile Manufacturers association:

"The greatness of the American automotive industry is largely the results of others applying his methods and ideals. Human beings everywhere will mourn the passing of this great man."

WALKOUT TO RETAIN BOSS TO END TODAY

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, April 8—A walkout of some 1,500 employe-stockholders in support of their boss at the Clyde, O., Porcelain Steel Corp. was scheduled to end today as a dispute involving R. R. Trubey, resigned company president, appeared headed for a court battle.

Employes, who struck last Thursday to retain Trubey as company head, said full production would be resumed today, but Trubey contended he would abide by his resignation as long as Thornton E. Stokes of New York held stock in the firm.

At a hectic meeting of Porcelain Steel stockholders here yesterday, three supporters of Trubey were renamed to the board, reduced by action of the shareholders from five members to three.

Stokes, former company vice president who owns 146,838 of the firm's 743,870 shares, asserted he should be entitled to name one member to a five-man board, and added he would ask for immediate court action to determine the legality of the stockholders' vote.

Suit Over Courthouse Painting Work Heard

A $310 judgment suit which developed out of the renovation of the exterior of the Marion county courthouse in 1945 was being tried before a jury in common pleas court today.

Plaintiffs in the litigation are Frank Slatzer and Jesse L. White, partners doing business as Slatzer and White and the defendant is Nellie R. Little, doing business as the Midwest Sandblast Co. of 627 North Main street.

The plaintiffs allege that the defendant entered into a contract with county commissioners for renovation of the exterior of the courthouse and the plaintiffs entered into a verbal contract with the defendant to paint the dome and other portions of the building. The plaintiffs claim that for labor and material the defendant promised to pay them $1,200, but maintain the defendant employed others to do the painting job. The plaintiffs charge their loss of profit on the project amounted to $310.

In an answer the defendant made a general denial of the allegations. J. W. Jacoby is attorney for the plaintiffs and J. D. Williamson and W. P. Moloney are attorneys for the defendant. The trial is expected to end late today.

Truman Watches Developments

President Truman was reported to be in close touch with developments in the strike but there were no signs that he might order seizure of the industry.

Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross told a news conference that Mr. Truman is being informed of efforts to settle the walkout. He added, however, that "nothing you could call a conference" has been held at the White House.

The government, industry and union alike were eyeing the situation to determine the effectiveness of the first cross-country work-stoppage by the telephone workers.

What the three sides to the controversy see may have a bearing not only on the length of the shutdown but on whether the government will step in with another postwar seizure.

However, its experience in the prolonged operation of the soft coal mines has made President Truman's administration reluctant to drag its remaining seizure authority out of the closet.

Cut 80 Per Cent

The first day of the walkout cut long distance service by 80 per cent and left millions of manually operated telephones useless.

NFTW President Joseph A. Beirne said last night the organization had girded itself for a long struggle when the strike was called at 6 a. m., yesterday.

breaks developed in Washington that might set a pattern for a settlement. However, there were no immediate prospects of such a development.

Only long distance and manual service were affected immediately by the strike. Dial phones are not affected unless a breakdown occurs.

Long distance work-load at Columbus dropped 80 per cent during the first day of the strike, said Homer W. Smart, district commercial manager.

"We handled more than 2,500 long distance calls, all the requests made," Smart said.

Earl Culp, Ohio federation public relations director, said the strike was 100 per cent effective as far as its members were concerned.

SCHOOL STRIKE MAY BRING COURT ACTION

By The Associated Press

CINCINNATI, April 8—Court action against parents of striking school pupils in North College Hill was anticipated today as a citizens organization inaugurated "a private school system" as a partial substitute for the suburban community's educational facilities which have been paralyzed for nearly three weeks

Establishment of "a private school system manned by qualified volunteer teachers" was announced by John Pitzer, president of the School Improvement association, at a mass meeting of 700 parents last night

Starting today, he said the approximately 360 elementary grade pupils—first through eighth—will be offered four hours of instruction daily in emergency classrooms set in two churches

They will be taught he explained, by "nine association members who hold Ohio teachers' certificates"

As classes progress, more volunteer teachers are expected to volunteer their services, he added

Meanwhile, arrangements are being completed for high school seniors to transfer to other schools so they can qualify for their diplomas this year Pitzer said

Programs on the Air

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 8—Generally normal program operations was experienced by the four coast to coast networks, heavy users of long distance broadcast lines to link affiliated stations, on the first day of the national telephone strike.

Furthermore, they said they anticipated no immediate serious interruption in regular transmission facilities as long as there were no mechanical breakdowns.

Special remote pickups are more directly affected Such items of necessity have to be eliminated, due to curtailment of extra facilities An example was the announced cancellation by MBS of a broadcast from a submarine at New London, Conn., scheduled for Friday.

FORTUNE

all the way from $200,000,000 up to $00,000,000

"Not Interested in Money"

He always asserted, however, that I am not interested in money but in the things for which money is merely a symbol * * * The only right use for money is to capitalize industry One might give it away but giving it away doesn't do any good."

Yet Ford, unobtrusively, contributed heavily to many charities, almost invariably with the stipulation his name should not be disclosed in connection with his gifts

Ford once was asked about the frequent reference to his great motorcar company as a "billion dollar empire"

"A billion dollar empire?" he reutrned "Money is just a part of a practical life; it saves time in exchanging goods, and is no good for anything else. All I care about it that we have enough money to do the work that lies ahead without borrowing

"When you borrow somebody else takes over your business and no matter what sort of slight-of-hand you use, debt is not wealth."

MARKET STEADIES IN TODAY'S TRADE

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, April 8—Stocks steadied in parts of today's market but the still confusing labor situation kept many leaders more or less subdued

Timid bidding was inspired by reports soft coal miners were returning to work here and there Revived hopes for settlement of the telephone strike also restricted offerings

Dealings turned sluggish after a fairly active opening and only 230 000 shares changed hands in the forenoon Irregularity ruled near the fourth hour

Resistance was exhibited by U. S Steel, United Aircraft, Montgomery Ward, Western Union "A," N Y Central, Northern Pacific, American Smelting, General Electric and Allied Chamical.

On the offside most of the time were American Telephone, General Motors, Schenley, Chrysler, Goodrich, Consolidated Edison, Southern Pacific, Santa Fe, Du Pont, Eastman Kodak, Texas Co. and U. S Gypsum.

LOVE'S PERILOUS PATH

By ADELE GARRISON

"MARY!" The exclamation came from my father, from Jack and from Katharine as with one breath

Then Katharine's mind, that of the efficient trained nurse, went straight to the inevitable question

"But if she were ill, why did the sanitarium authorities permit her to come home?"

"They didn't," I said "She went A.W.O.L."

My father looked at his wrist watch.

"We haven't much time," he said, "for there is much we have to discuss But I can give you five minutes Can you tell us about it in that time?"

"In less," I told him, and rapidly sketched for them the events that had followed our receipt of Mary's hectic telegram And before I finished I had tried to make plain Mary's objections to nurses, and our desperate need of someone to care for her with me.

From beneath my lashes I saw Katharine and Jack exchange significant glances, and my pulses leaped with hope.

Hope Fulfilled

It was a hope fulfilled an instant later when Katharine spoke in her usual calm tones.

"Don't worry any more," she said. "I don't believe Mary would object to me, would she?"

"Oh!" I gasped, and struggled for speech, the relief was so great.

"You know she'll be all right with you," I told her. "In fact, she spoke of you, saying there was nobody like you or words to that effect."

"She's not going out of her mind as long as she can voice truths like that," Jack said, and there was that in his voice which I knew made his words a heady tribute to his wife

"Then it's all settled, if you approve, Dr Twitchell," she said with a smile

"If I approve!" the elderly physician exclaimed "I'm virtually dancing in the streets right now for joy! But you will have to have another nurse, won't you?"

"We can take that up in a day or two," Katharine said equably "Didn't I hear you say that you meant to give her a strong sedative every night?"

"Yes, she must have sleep," Dr Twitchell reaffirmed.

"And if either Mrs Graham or I are in the room, ready to be called on an instant's notice, couldn't some one of the family, not a nurse, watch by her bedside while she sleeps?"

"Of course," the physician replied, "provided she doesn't waken and get excited by the presence of one of the family"

"I know your sedatives, Dr Twitchell," Katharine said with a smile "When you put them to sleep, they stay asleep until the time you have set for them to awaken"

The elderly physician permitted the wraith of a pleased smile to twitch his lips, then he spoke with authority

Arrange Watches

"This settles things very nicely," he said "You and Ms Graham will arrange your watches between you for tonight, and I shall call in the morning in time to be here before she awakens. And now, as you no doubt have important things to discuss, I beg that you will excuse me"

He rose, and started for the door, but halted as my father spoke.

"But that is something I do not wish to do, Dr. Twitchell," he said "I want you to remain here for the discussion. It is great good luck, my finding you here I intended to contact you as soon as I left here."

The physician sat down again with a little gratified smile playing about his lips.

"I am honored," he said, and then Dicky gave a little exclamation as he looked at his wrist watch.

"I'm afraid you'll have to count me out, Dad," he said "It's time for me to go for Faith"
